P R E F A C E.

THE utility of works similar to the present is too generally admitted to require any apology for their publication. There is, notwithstanding, in their very nature, a dryness which requires relief: the Author trusts, therefore, that, in blending something of the imaginative with the details of philosophical precision, his work will not be found wholly destitute of that amusement which must necessarily make it more acceptable to the general reader.

The Glossary contains the fruit of years of unwearyed attention to the subject; and the work, altogether, will, it is hoped, be of some utility in elucidating our older writers, in affording occasional helps to the etymology of the Anglo-Saxon portion of our language, and also in exhibiting a view of the present state of an important dialect of the Western provinces of England.

A late excursion through the West has, however, induced the Author to believe that some valuable information may yet remain to be gathered from our Anglo-Saxon dialect—more especially from that part of it still used by the common people and the yeomany. Under this impression, he respectfully solicits communications from those who feel an interest in this department of our literature; and should it be the good fortune of this little work to reach a second edition, he hopes that it may be, by such communications, materially improved.

To a native of the West of England this volume will be found, the Author believes and trusts, an agreeable and convenient vade-mecum of reference, and assist the reminiscence of well-known, although, perhaps, too often unnoted peculiarities and words, which are fast receding from the polish of elegance, and the refinement of literature.

In regard to the Poetical Pieces, it may be mentioned that most of them are founded on West Country Stories, the incidents in which actually occurred; they will not, therefore, on this account, be the less acceptable. If some of the subjects should be thought trifling, it will not, it is hoped, be forgotten that the primary object has been, to exemplify the Dialect, and that common subjects offered the most ready, and, indeed, the best means of effectuating such an object. Of such Poems as Good Byre ta thee Cot; the Rookery; and Mary Ramsey's Crutch, it may be observed, that had the Author felt less he might, perhaps, have written better.

☞ The Author's anxiety to render his work as complete as possible, has prompted him to make the following ADDITIONS and CORRECTIONS: the reader is, therefore, respectfully requested to peruse these before he proceeds to the OBSERVATIONS, &c. They are placed before the work itself from an apprehension that, if added as a Supplement, they might not insure that notice which it is desirable they should obtain.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

IN addition to what has been said concerning the dialects of the West, in the Observations, &c. it may be noted here that the diphthong oi, is often pronounced like wi. Thus for spoil, we have spwile; for boil, bwile; for point, pwint; for poison, pwison; for soil, swile, &c.

The d is generally omitted in the conjunction and: as, you an I.

The g, in the present participle, is also silent. Thus, instead of loving, we have lovin; for hearin, hearin or hirin; for singing, zingin, &c. And, generally, all words of two or more syllables, ending in our polished dialect in ing, have the g omitted in the Somersetshire pronunciation. Thus, lightning, is lightnin; groaning, groanin; gosling, gozlin, &c. &c.

Again. prep. Against.

To Auverdro'. v. a. To overthrow.

Bad. adv. Badly.

Bag'inet. s. A bayonet.

Ballet. s. A ballad.

x ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Ban'nut. s. A walnut. ~~☞~~ Not generally used ; only in the Northern parts of the County.

Bee'äs. s. pl. [Beasts.] Cattle. Only applied to the ox tribe, never to sheep.

For Be'edy, read Be'dy. See the GLOSSARY.

Bisky. s. A biscuit.

~~☞~~ It would be scarcely worth while to notice this difference in the word biscuit (twice baked), were it not that its pronunciation approaches nearly to the sound given by the French to cuit, the latter portion of the word—the t being entirely omitted in the Somersetshire delivery.

Blath'er. s. A bladder.

To Blath'er. v. n. To talk fast and, in consequence, generally nonsensically ; to talk so fast that bladders form at the mouth.

Boar. s. That peculiar head or first flowing of the water from one to two or more feet in height at spring tides, seen in the River Parret, for a few miles below, and also at Bridgewater, and which is seen also in some other rivers.

~~☞~~ This word is in Todd's Johnson, and there spelled bore. I prefer the above orthography, because I believe that the word is derived from boar, the animal so called, in consequence of the noise, rushing, and impetuosity of the water. Mr. Todd's definition, notwithstanding the authority of Mr. Burke, is not applicable to the boar to be seen in the River Parret. With this phenomenon I have been familiar from my childhood. It is curious to contemplate the different opinions of writers on this word, and on the causes of the phenomenon itself. It appears, however, by St. PIERRE, Oeuvres, Tome VI. page 234, Hamburgh Edit. 1797, that the phenomenon is not exactly the same in the Seine as in the Parrot.

“Cette montagne d'eau est produite par les marées qui entrent de la mer dans la Seine, et la font refluer contre son cours. On l'entend venir de fort loin, surtout la nuit. On l'appelle la Barre, parce qu'elle barre le cours de la Seine. Cette barre est ordinairement suivie d'une seconde barre, encore plus élevée, qui la suit à cent toises de distance. Elles courrent beaucoup plus vite qu'un cheval au galop.”

St. Pierre's etymology of the word appears to me extremely fanciful. “It is called Bar,” says he, “because it bars the current of the Seine!”

Since the above was written, I have referred to the Encyclopædia Metropolitana, article Bore, and there the Editor does not seem to be more fortunate in his definition or derivation than his predecessors.

Bob'bish. adj. In spirits and health.

☞ Pirty bobbish, pretty well.

Under Bran [See the GLOSSARY] for pice, read piece.

Bruckle. a. [See the GLOSSARY] “My things are but in a bruckle state.”—WAVERLY, Vol. II, page 328, Edit. 1821.

To Buck. v. n. To swell out.

Cass'n. } Canst not : as, Thee cass'n do it, thou
Cass'n't. } canst not do it.

☞ It may be as well to observe here what ought, indeed, to have been mentioned in the Observations on the Dialects, that thee, as the nominative for thou, is in very general use in the West ; and although thou is occasionally heard, it is by no means so common as its brother pronoun thee.

Catch-corner. s. An amusement correctly designated by its title.

Cla'vy. s. [See the GLOSSARY.]

☞ The term clavy was, most probably, given to that piece of wood, or other material, which is usually laid over the front of the fire-place, because, in most houses of any consideration, even country farm-houses, the keys were formerly, and, indeed, now are very often, suspended on pins or nails driven into it : hence from clavis, Latin, a key, is derived the term clavy—the place where the keys are hung.

Cla'vy-piece. s. A mantel-piece.

Cla'vy-tack. s. The shelf over the mantel-piece.

To Collo'gue. v. n. To associate in order to effectuate some improper purpose. Thieves colloge together in order to carry on their depredations effectually.

☞ “But it was hardly possible two such * * rascals should collogue together without mischief to honest people.”—Novels and Tales, by the Author of Waverly, Vol. VIII, Rob Roy, Edit. 1821, page 319.

Collo'gin. s. [g hard] An association for accomplishing some improper purpose.

☞ This and the preceding word are in Todd's Johnson; but there, it is evident, the definition is incorrect.

Colt-ale. s. Literally, ale given by a person who enters upon any new office or employment, to those already in it; but, generally, money paid to be spent in liquor for such purpose. Sometimes called Footing: this meaning of footing ought to be, I think, in Todd's Johnson.

Coop. interj. A word used, very generally, to attract fowls in order that they may be fed.

To Cork. v. a. To make a horse's shoe so that when passing on ice, or on a frozen road, he will not slip.

Craup. preterite of To creep.

Cubby-hole. s. A snug, confined place.

Cute. adj. Sharp, clever.

Dang. interj. This word is always followed by some noun or pronoun, as dang it; dang 'em; sometimes it is preceded by od, as od dang it.

☞ It was formerly a kind of imprecation, implying God hang it; but the present meaning of dang or rather dang it, is little more than expletive; it is rarely, if ever, used in a bad sense.

For Dawzin read Dan'zin [See the GLOSSARY.]

☞ RAY, in his Catalogus Plantarum Angliae,

&c. article Corylus, thus speaks of the Divining Rod. “Vulgus metallicorum ad virgulam divinam, ut vocant, quâ venas metallorum inquirit, præ cæteris furcam eligit columnam.”—And he adds, “Qui de virgula divinatoria plura velit, adeat J. Bauhinum.” The curious, therefore, in this affair may, if they please, consult JOHN BAUHIN, for whose lucubrations on this subject, I confess that I have no particular predilection.

Dig'ence. s. [g hard] The evil one; the devil.

☞ In some modern publication, which I have lately seen, this word is spelled Dickens; why I do not know.

Dow'sty. adj. Dusty.

For Drin'get, read Dring'et. [See the GLOSSARY.]

Duck-an-Mallard. s. The play of throwing slates or other flat stones upon the water, so that they may rise several times after striking the surface before they sink; Duck and Drake.

☞ Hen pen
Duck-an-Mallard
Amen.

Dwon't. Do not.

Eese. adv. Yes.

Eet. adv. Yet. See 1^r.

Fooäse. s. Force. See Vooäse.

To Fooäse. v. a. To force.

Foo'ty. adj. Insignificant; paltry; of no importance.

Fout. preterite of To fight.

To Frunt. v. a. To affront.

Fur'nis. s. A large vessel or boiler, used for brewing, and other purposes. It is always fixed with bricks and mortar, and surrounded with flues, for the circulation of the heat and exit of the smoke.

Gaern. s. A garden.

Gal'lise. s. The gallows.

Gifts. s. pl. The white spots frequently seen on the finger nails.

For Gilaw'fer, read Gil'anfer. See the GLOSSARY.

Girt. adj. Great.

Goose-cap. s. A silly person.

To Gree. v. n. To agree.

Hang-gallise. adj. Deserving the gallows, felonious, vile: as a hang-gallise fellow.

Hay'ty-tay'ty. { s. [Derived, most probably, from Highty-tity. { height, and tite weight: see tite in the GLOSSARY.]

A board or pole, resting, in the middle only, on some elevated place and balanced so that two persons, one sitting on each end, may move up and down alternately by striking the ground with the feet. It is sometimes called simply a Tayty.

Herd. s. A keeper of cattle.

Het. pron. See the GLOSSARY.

☞ Although I have not used this form of the pronoun it in any of the pieces exemplifying the dialect, it is nevertheless occasionally, indeed I may say often, heard among agricultural labourers. That it was thus formerly used we have the authority of Sir John Fortescue, a judge in the reign of Henry VI.—“Hyt may, peradventure, be marvelid by some men.”—Difference between an absolute and limited Monarchy. Chap. II.

Hiz'en. sing. and plur. pron. Used for his when not followed by a substantive: as whose house is that? Hizen.

Hi'zy Pri'zy. A corruption of Nisi Prius, the name of a well known law assize.

Under Hollardy [See the GLOSSARY] for Holliday, read Holiday.

Home-screech. [See the GLOSSARY.] For eviscivorus, read viscivorus.

Howsomiver. adv. However; howsoever.

Under Ise [See the GLOSSARY] add ~~it~~ West of the Parret.

Ist. [i long] s. East.

Istard. adv. [i long] Eastward.

It. adv. Yet. ~~it~~ It is very remarkable that two distinct sounds of this adverb prevails: it and eet: see N'EET.

Jif'fey. s. A short time; an instant.

Keep. s. A basket: applied only to large baskets, never to a small one.

Kirsmas. s. Christmas.

To Kirsen. v. a. To christen.

~~it~~ The two preceding words are exemplifications of the change of place of certain letters, particularly the r, as mentioned in the Observations: these are, however, clearly corruptions.

Knack-kneed. adj. In-kneed; having the knees so grown that they strike against each other.

Lât. s. A lath.

To Leath'er. v. a. To beat.

List. } s. The strip or border on woollen cloth,
Lis'tin. } which, when taken off, is used for various purposes.

Lis'tin. adj. Made of list.

Littlest. adj. Least.

Lock-a-daisy. interj. Of surprise, or of pleasure.

To Lose Leather. To be galled on the nates by riding.

Lowance. s. Allowance; portion.

Mad'am. s. This word, fully accented (not as ma'am), is applied very generally to the more respectable classes of society: as Madam Greenwood, Madam Saunders, &c. See Dame, in the GLOSSARY.

Man'der. s. A corruption, probably, of the word manner; but used only in the sense of sort or kind: as âll mander o' thengs; all sorts of things. Mander is sometimes used as a kind of plural; âll mander means all kinds; a great variety: as, Ducks an Geese an âll mander.

To Maw. v. a. To mow.

May. s. The blossom of the white thorn.

xviii ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Na'atal. adj. Natural.

Na'atally. adv. Naturally.

N'eet. } adv. Nor yet.
N'it. }

Nor'ra one. } Never a one.
Nor'ry one. }

Nor'ad. adv. Northward.

Not'tamy. s. Corrupted from anatomy; but it means, very often, that state of the living body implied by the terms, mere skin and bone.

Obstrop'ilous. adj. Obstinate, resisting.

Od-rot-it. interj. A vulgar imprecation.

Ods-bobs. interj. Implying surprise.

Ont. } Of it. I a done ont; I a done o't; I have O't. }

Or'chit. s. An orchard.

Ornd. part. Ordained, fated.

Or'ra one. } Any one; ever a one.
Or'ry one. }

Pack-an-Penny-Day. s. The last day of a fair, when bargains are usually sold.

To Par'get. v. a. To plaster the inside of a chimney with a mortar made of cow dung and lime.

Pick. s. A two-pronged fork, used chiefly for making hay; a pike or pitch-fork.

Portmantle. s. A portmanteau.

Pot'icary. s. An apothecary.

To Rough. v. a. To roughen; particularly a horse's shoes, so that he may not slip in frosty weather.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS. xix

Rozim. s. Rosin.

Rum. s. Room, space.

Sâ'cer-eyes. Very large and prominent eyes.

Sar'ment. s. A sermon.

Sar'tin. adj. Certain.

Sar'tinly. adv. Certainly.

Scissis-sheer. s. A scissar's-sheath.

Scol'lop. s. An indentation ; a notch ; a collop.

To Scol'lop. v. a. To indent ; to notch.

To Shod. v. a. To shed ; to spill.

Showl. s. A shovel.

To Showl. v. a. To shovel.

Sizes. s. pl. The assizes.

Snip'py. adj. Mean, parsimonious.

Spawl. s. A chip from a stone.

Stad'dle. s. The wooden frame or logs, &c. with stones or other support, on which ricks of corn are usually elevated.

To Stoore. v. a. and v. n. To stir.

To Squitter. v. n. To squirt.

Suth'ard. adv. Southward.

Tan. adv. Then. Now an tan ; now and then.

Theäze. pron. This.

Them'my. pron. Those.

Trim. v. a. To beat.

Tur'init. s. A turnip.

Tur'ney. s. An attorney.

Vist. } s. [i long] The Fist.
Vice. } s. [i long] The Fist.

xx . ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Vlan'nin. s. Flannel.

Vooäse. s. Force.

To Vooäse. v. a. To Force.

Vor'ad. adv. and adj. Forward.

Vust. adj. First.

Walnut. s. A large variety of the walnut, sometimes called the double walnut. The common kinds of walnuts are called French-nuts. See French-nut, in the GLOSSARY.

Whir'ra. The same as WORRA, which see. It is most probable that this word, as well as worra, is derived from the verb to whir, to turn round rapidly with noise.

Yack'er. s. An acre.

Yal'ler. adj. Yellow.

Yap'ern. s. An apron.

Yes. s. [See the GLOSSARY.] Tha vust bird, tha rust yes, first come first served, is a common proverb.

Yez y. adj. Easy.

Zitch. adj. Such.

Zooäp. s. Soap.

Zoon'er. adv. Rather.

Since this work has been in the press, my attention has been directed to a Paper of General VALLANCEY, in the second volume of the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy, which was read before that Society, Dec. 27, 1788. By this paper it appears, that a colony of English soldiers settled in the Baronies of Forth and Bargie, in the county of Wexford, in Ireland, in the years 1167, 1168, and 1169; and that this colony have preserved their ancient manners, customs, and language, to the present time [1788]. To the account of General Vallancey is added a Vocabulary of their language, and a song which has, it is said, been handed down by tradition from the arrival of the colony in Ireland, now more than six hundred years since. A few observations on these curiosities will be conceded to me.

I think there can be no question that the Irish colonists were from the West of England, and most probably from Somersetshire, but of what part is not so easily determined: perhaps from different parts of the county, and from the apparent admixture of dialects, evident in the vocabulary and the song, this I should suspect to be the case. But, from whatever part they came, that their language, as given us by General Vallancey, is very much altered from the Anglo-Saxon of Somersetshire is certain.

The words nouth, knoweth; zin, sun; vrast, frost; die, day; Zathardie, Saturday; Zindei, Sunday, and a few others, indicate an origin West of the Parret. There are, however, many words which with a trifling alteration in the orthography, would suit, at the present time, the north-eastern portion of the county; such are blauther, bladder; xxii ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

brekvast, breakfast; crnest, crust; smill, smell; skir, to rise in the air [I give the definition of these words as I find them in the vocabulary. See Skeer in the GLOSSARY]; vier, fire; vier, a weazel; zar, to serve; zitch, such, &c. From such words as ch'am and ch'ull, the southern part of the county is clearly indicated.

There are, however, many words in this vocabulary of which I have no knowledge, and of their origin or meaning cannot, of course, speak. But, I think, the disposition to elision and contraction is as evident here as it is at the present time in Somersetshire, and making allowance for difference of apprehension or of opinion in the conveyance of sounds, many of them may be explained without a great departure from correct etymology.

Of the song, I cannot avoid expressing my suspicion, that it must have undergone considerable change since its first introduction by the early colonists. Louthee is evidently derived from lenwth [See the GLOSSARY, article lenwth]; lenwthy will be, of course, abounding with lenwth—equivalent to sheltered.

The line

“ At by misluck icas i pit t' drive in.”

Would in the present Somerset dialect thus stand,

That by misluck war a put ta dreav in.

That by misluck was placed to drive in.

In the line

“ Chote well ar aim was t' yie ouz n'eer a blice.” the word chote is, I suspect, compounded of 'ch' [iche] and know, implying I knew, or rather I know'd, or knowt.*

The modern English of the line will then be,
 I knew well their aim was to give us ne'er a blow.

I suspect zitchel is compounded of zitch, such, and the auxiliary verb will. I viene ame, is a veo o'm ; that is, a few of them. Emothee, is emmety, that is, abounding with ants. Moulten away, is melting away.

Th'ast ee pait it, thee'st a paid it ; thou hast paid it.

In the English translation which accompanies

* The following line is from an amatory poem, written, it is conjectured, in or about the reign of Henry II. during which the colony of the English was established in the county of Wexford.

“ Ichot from heuene it is me sent.”

In TODD'S JOHNSON, History of the English Language, page liii. it is thus translated—

“ I wot (believe) it is sent me from heaven.”

To an admirer of our Anglo-Saxon all the lines, twelve in number, quoted by Mr. Todd with the above, will be found a rich treat: want of space only prevents my giving them here.

the original song in General Vallancey's paper, some of the words are, I think, beyond controversy misinterpreted, but I have neither room nor inclination to go critically through it. All I desire should be inferred from these remarks is, that, although this Anglo-Saxon curiosity is well worthy the attention of those who take an interest in our early literature, we must be careful not to assume that it is a pure specimen of the language of the period to which, and of the people to whom, it is said to relate.

Postscript.—The demonstrative pronouns, and their use in the Somerset dialect, are deserving some attention. Theäze, this; theäzam, theäzamy, these; thic, that [West of the Parret, theky]; them, themmy, those. But such is the disposition for pleonasm in the use of all these pronouns, that they are, very often indeed, used with the adverb there. As theäze here, thic there [West of the Parret theky there], theäzam here, theäzamy here; them there; themmy there.

OBSERVATIONS ON
SOME OF THE DIALECTS
IN
THE WEST OF ENGLAND, PARTICULARLY SOMERSETSHIRE.

OBSERVATIONS, &c.

THE district which the following Glossary is designed to include, embraces the whole of the county of Somerset east of the river Parret, as well indeed as parts of Wiltshire and Gloucestershire; many of the words being common to all these counties. In the district west of the river Parret, the pronunciation and many of the words are very different indeed, so as to designate strongly the people who use them. The chief peculiarity, however, of the district west of the Parret, consists in their terminating, in the present tense of the indicative mood, all the third persons singular of the verbs in th or eth; thus, instead of he loves, he reads, he sees, it rains, &c. they uniformly say, he lov'th, he read'th, he zee'th, it rain'th, &c. There is also some variation in some of the pronouns; thus they have Ise for I, and Er for he. The peculiarities and contractions of this dialect are, to a stranger, not a little puzzling. Thus, her is very frequently indeed used for she. Har'th a doo'd it, is, she has done it. This dialect pervades, not only the more western parts of Somersetshire, but also the whole of Devonshire. However, it is not my intention to enter further into this subject here. I shall occasionally note in the glossary such words as are distinguishingly characteristic of it.

Two of the most remarkable peculiarities in the language of the West of England, and particularly of a large portion of Somersetshire, are the sounds given to the letters A and E. A has, almost universally, the sound given to it as in the word father: in the words bâll, tâll, câll, &c. it is thus pronounced. The E has most commonly the same sound as the French give to this letter, which is, in fact, the slender sound of the A as heard in pane, cane, fane, &c.

It is a curious fact, and well deserves observation, that the sound given in our polished dialect to the letters th, expressed by the Anglo-Saxon ȝ, is frequently converted in the western dialects into the sound universally given in England to the letter d. Thus for thread, we have dread or dird; for through, droo; for thrash and its compounds, drash; for throng, drong, or rather drang; for thrush, dirsh, &c.

The slender sound given to th in our polished dialect is, in the West, most commonly converted into the thick or obtuse sound of the same letters as heard in the words this, these, &c. ; and this, too, very often whether the letters be inceptive or final.

Notwithstanding our lexicographers have usually given the powers of th to the Anglo-Saxon letters D and ȝ, I am very much disposed to believe that these letters were sometimes, nay perhaps often, used indiscriminately by our Anglo-Saxon ancestors for D only, and sounded as such, as we find at the present time they are so frequently thus sounded in the West.

Another remarkable fact is, the disposition to invert the order of some of the consonants in certain words ; as the r in thrush, brush, rush, &c., these words being pronounced dirsh, birsh, hirsh, &c. ; and the s in such words as clasp, hasp, asp, &c., they being sounded claps, haps, aps, &c. Some of these words will be found in the Glossary ; but I have not thought it necessary to notice them all ; these general observations will, I hope, enable the student to detect the words when subjected to such inversion. On this subject, however, it may be observed, that it is by no means improbable that the order in which such sounds are now repeated in the west, is the original order in which they existed in our language; and that our present polished mode of expressing them is a new, and, in fact, perhaps, as in many other instances in our polished dialect, a corrupt enunciation. This observation may appear singular to many persons; but I am not the first writer who has made it. There will, I think, be no great difficulty in accounting for such variations. As the language of the country has been and is too often accompanied with a coarseness of manners, our citizens, and other arbitri elegantiarum, have, no doubt, felt desirous of removing as far as possible from such coarseness; and in doing this the enunciation even of country persons has been studiously avoided. And hence numerous anomalies and novelty in sounds, as well as in orthography, have, I doubt not, arisen; and hence also the great difficulty, from the inversion or misplacing of letters, of discovering the genuine etymology of many words.

Another peculiarity is that of attaching to many of the common verbs in the infinitive mode, as well as to some other parts of different conjugations, the letter y. Thus it is very common to say I can't sewy, I can't nursy, he can't reapy, he can't sawy; as well as to sewy, to nursy, to reapy, to sawy, &c. but never, I think, without an auxiliary verb, or the sign of the infinitive to. I am very much disposed to believe, that this arises from an inclination to give the infinitives of verbs an uniform termination, as in the French and many other languages. I am not aware that this observation on our English dialect has been ever made before.

Another peculiarity is that of making two syllables of words which are monosyllables in our polished dialect. And thus the words air, both, fair, fire, stairs, sure, &c. become ayer, booäth, fayer, viär, stayers, shower, &c. And thus, I have no doubt, they were formerly very generally pronounced, as Chaucer gives many of them as dissyllables.

The verb to be retains much of its primitive form in this dialect. Instead of I am, &c. I be, thou beest or bist, thee beest, we be, you be, they or thâ be, are constantly heard; but rarely or never, he be but he is. In the past tense war, for was and were, is always used: as I war, thee or thou wart, he war, we war, you war, they or thā war. Besides these peculiarities in this verb, we often hear we'm for we are, you'm for you are, and they'm for they are.

There is also as strong a tendency to pleonasm in some instances, as to contraction and elision in others. Thus we have alost for lost, agone for gone, abought for bought, abrought for brought, &c. Exemplifications of these prefixes will be found in abundance in Chaucer; but he very often uses the y instead of a, as ylost.

Notwithstanding there is an impression very generally entertained, I believe, that this dialect of the west is a very rough and inharmonious one; except in the frequent and unpleasant use of Z for S and V for F, I do not think it will be found so deficient in agreeable sounds as it has been commonly supposed. Certain it is, that it would not be difficult to select many words which may, for their modulation, compete with others of gallic extraction; and, perhaps, in many respects, would be found superior to numbers which we have thought proper to borrow from other languages, much less analogous to the polished dialect of our own.

In pursuance of these ideas, I have added some poetical and prose pieces in the dialect of Somersetshire. I cannot say that I have, by any means, satisfied myself as to the poetry; but I think the reader may rest assured that the idiom is tolerably well preserved; and that, as much as possible, the pronunciation is conveyed in letters the nearest to the sound of the words: there are, in truth, many sounds for which we have neither letters nor combinations of letters to express them; in such cases I have been under the necessity of adopting those letters whose sounds approach the nearest to those which I intended to express: to have gone into a comparison between the sounds of all the letters of the alphabet as pronounced in Somersetshire, and as they are pronounced in our polished dialect, would have been a degree of criticism to which, perhaps, the subject is not entitled; and is, at all events, one into which I am not now disposed to enter.

The reader will bear in mind that these poems are composed in the dialect of the county of Somerset, north-east of the river Parret. Other dialects, as I have before observed, are to be found; but this is, by far, the most general: and, it is, besides, that with which I am best acquainted, and in which, of course, I have preferred writing. Where I have used the circumflex over the letter â it is to be understood that the sound of the letter is to be exactly like the a in father. I might have adopted the same plan with respect to the vowel o, for the long sound of it, as heard in the words no, gold, &c. ; which is, for the most part, like aw in the word awful, but, as it is very easy to convey this sound by an additional letter, I have preferred the latter mode.

The words found in these pieces, which are not known in our polished dialect, are explained in the Glossary, except where some alteration in the spelling only is made, such as jay for joy, hort for heart, and a few others : the reader will, in this respect, it is presumed, find no difficulty in supplying the true meaning : it did not appear necessary to increase the Glossary by the explanation of such synonyms.

Whilst upon the subject of poetry it may be appropriate here to observe, that in the periodical work called the Guardian, published more than a century ago, is a paper No. 40 concerning pastoral poetry. This paper, it is now very generally understood, was written by POPE, to extol his own pastorals and degrade those of Ambrose Phillips. In this essay a pretended Somersetshire poem is spoken of, and quoted from. But Mr. Pope's invention here fails him ; it is evident he knew little or nothing about the Somersetshire dialect. Let us examine a few of the lines from “this old west country bard of ours,” as Mr. Pope is pleased to call him.

Cicely. Ah Rager, Rager, chez was zore avraid
When in yond yield you kiss'd tha parson's maid :
Is this the love that once to me you zed,
When from tha wake thou broughtst me gingerbred?

I would remark, in the first place, that what is here of the Somerset dialect is neither east, west, north, nor south, but a strange admixture. Chez is no where used, that I know of, but in the southern part of the county, utchy or ichè is sometimes spoken contractedly che. See the article UTCHY in the Glossary. Yield, for field, should be veel. Again, I know no part of Somersetshire where the word wake is used : revel is the synonym. The word parson is always, in the Somerset dialect, páson. In another line, not quoted above, he calls the cows kee; now this is not Somersetian; nor is be go for begone; it should be, be gwon; nor is I've a be, but I've a bin, Somersetian. The two last lines above quoted are a complete exemplification of Pope's manner of sacrificing the persons of the verb to the measure.

To conclude these remarks on Mr. POPE: it would not be very difficult to suppose that, when he used the word chez, he was thinking of French rather than English, although there is little analogy between the sounds of chez, French, and of che, English. But with the French language, I make no doubt, Pope was much better acquainted than with the dialect of Somersetshire. Even in London, at the present time, such is the disposition for foreign sounds and idioms, that our English ch is frequently sounded sh, more especially in proper names. It is very easy for a writer, such as Mr. Pope, to invent and publish a few lines of a thing which he chooses to call a Somersetshire pastoral, in order to bring another writer, his cotemporary, into contempt; but such disingenuity must ultimately find (Mr. Pope's long ago has found) its proper desert. This is not one of the transactions of a great poet's life on which it is complacent to repose.

The idiomatic expressions in this dialect are numerous. Some will be found in the Glossary. The following may be also mentioned. I'd sley do it, for I would as lief do it. Righting-lawn, adjusting the ridges after the wheat is sown. Throwing-batches, cutting up and destroying ant-hills. To goo out a chooring, to go out to do any kind of dirty and other household work. Slike for it is like; a power of rain, for a great deal of rain; to rake the viër, to cover the fire with ashes, so that it may remain burning during the night; 'Tword'n I, it was not I; 'Tword'n he, it was not he. The following are common plurals: cheezen, cheese; houzen, houses; peazen, peas; p/azen, places.

I have made an occasional suggestion in the Glossary relative to the etymology of some of these words. A few are evidently derived from the Latin, and the monachism, no doubt, of some of our forefathers, and a few from the French; but by far the greater part have, I presume, an Anglo-Saxon, some, perhaps, a Danish, origin. And although their roots may not be found in Lye, I should be disposed to think that they had escaped the researches of that lexicographer ; and when we consider how many words escaped Johnson, the omissions of our earlier dictionary compilers are not surprising. In my own case, although I here present the reader with the fruits of twenty-five years assiduity, I cannot flatter myself that the field is yet completely gleaned. And mine is, comparatively, a small district ; although it has more relation to our general language than has been commonly supposed. I incline, indeed, to think that the present language and pronunciation of Somersetshire were, some centuries past, general in the South portion of our island.

Before I close these observations, I am desirous of noticing an error into which, I fear, too many of our lexicographers have fallen, in compiling a dictionary from a living language. They have depended too much upon books, and too little upon the use and accepted meaning of words as they are current in the every-day transactions of life. Hence it sometimes happens, that the meaning in a dictionary is at variance with the use of the word in society ; and it has happened, too, that many words are current in society, which no lexicographer has arrested, but which are nevertheless useful words. Books are not, in fact, the only sources whence information of this kind should be derived. In compiling this Glossary I have derived very little assistance from books ; but have defined the words from their actual usage. If some of the definitions should not appear so correct as could be desired, it will, I hope, be remembered that the path was, in great measure, untrodden, and that a follower in the same walk may find it much more smooth.

But, although I have derived little assistance from books, the reader should know that I have carefully consulted Junius, Skinner, Minshew, and some other of our old lexicographers. In these, it is true, I have found several of the words which are in my Glossary ; and I find also that many of their definitions are correct, and will correspond with my own ; but their conjectural etymologies are, in too many instances, calculated to mislead. For this reason, I have myself avoided conjectural etymology ; and have only mentioned the derivation when high probability or absolute certainty was apparent. It is remarkable that few, if any, dictionaries of our language are to be obtained which were published from the invention of the art of printing in the middle of the fifteenth century and during the whole of the sixteenth, a period of about one hundred and fifty years. These dictionaries would, no doubt, throw considerable light on our early literature and provincial words. It is true some scarce copies of such works are to be found, I understand, in the cabinets of the curious, but they are not accessible to the general reader. Yet, after all, it must be admitted that, besides a practical and extensive acquaintance with the viva voce dialect, our OLD WRITERS are our chief resource in this study; and I doubt not that many MSS. now in the various depositaries in this country which were written at different periods of our history, before printing was introduced, would throw the most light on this subject.

From an extensive view of the dialects of this country, and particularly of those of the West of England, I think we cannot avoid arriving at the conclusion, that the Anglo-Saxon dialect, of which I conceive the dialect of the West to be a striking portion, has been gradually retiring to make way for our polished idiom, till that original dialect has ceased to be considered any thing but a barbarism ; whereas many of the sounds of that dialect will be found in Holland and in Germany a part of the respective living languages of those countries, as well as in other districts of the North of Europe.

To a person, therefore, acquainted with this dialect, who has leisure, and who should feel disposed to go through a course of study amongst our old writers, and who has an opportunity of examining our old MSS., an abundant harvest offers, from which an amusing book might be made, illustrative of many of our provincial words and of our ancient manners. But such leisure, whatever may be my disposition, does not fall to my share ; the compilation of such a work must be left to some more fortunate individual than myself. I must be contented with having thus far elucidated the language of my native county.

I have omitted several words which I supposed provincial, and which are of frequent occurrence in the West ; but as I have found them in Todd's Johnson, I thought it useless to repeat them here. A few words will, however, be found in this Glossary which have a place in Todd's Johnson. These I have given, either because I did not conceive Mr. Todd's definition correct, or in order to make some observations on their etymology, or for some other reason. I cannot take my leave of this labour without adding, that although TODD'S JOHNSON will still admit of considerable addition and improvement, it contains, in my judgment, the greatest mass of information on the subject of our own language at present extant. In another edition many of Dr. Johnson's definitions should be corrected, they are manifestly erroneous ; the accentuation should also be improved : instead of the accent being always placed over the vowel, it should be varied according as the stress is on the vowel or on the consonant.

In concluding these observations on the dialects of the West, I would direct the reader's attention to the very general use of the demonstrative pronoun thic for that ; as, thic house, that house ; thic man, that man, &c. Chaucer uses the word very often, but he spells it thilk,

A GLOSSARY OF WORDS USED IN SOMERSETSHIRE.

A.

A. adv. Yes. A is also frequently used instead of the pronoun he : as a zed a'd do it ; he said he'd do it.

Ab'bey. s. The great white poplar : one of the varieties of the populus alba.

Ab'bey-lubber. s. A lazy, idle fellow.

Abought. part. See VAUGHT.

Abrood'. adv. When a hen is sitting on her eggs she is said to be abrood.

Ad'dle. s. A swelling with matter in it.

Ad'dled. a. Having pus or corruption ; hence

Ad'dled-egg. s. An egg in a state of putrefaction.

Affeard'. a. Afraid.

Afo're. } prep. and adv. Before ; afore, Chaucer.

Agon'. } adv. [these words literally mean gone.]

Agoo'. } Ago ; agoo, Chaucer ; from the verb to goo, i. e. to go ; he is up and agoo ; he is up and gone.

Alas-a-dây. interj. A-lack-a-day.

Ale. s. A liquor, brewed with a proportion of malt from about four to six bushels to the hogshead of 63 gallons ; if it contain more malt it is called beer ; if less, it is usually called small beer.

Al'ler. s. The alder tree,

Ay'ir. s. Air.

B.

BACK'SID. s. A barton.

Back'y. s. Tobacco.

Bai'ly. s. A bailiff ; a superintendant of an estate.

Ball. adj. Bald.

Ball'rib. s. A sparerib.

To Bal'lirag. v. a. To abuse with foul words ; to scold.

To Ban. v. a. To shut out ; to stop.

To Bane. v. a. To afflict with a mortal disease : applied to sheep. See to COATHE.

To Barenhond'. v. n. (used chiefly in the third

To Banehond'. person singular) to signify intention ; to intimate.

These words are in very common use in the West of England. It is curious to note their gradation from Chaucer, whose expression is, Beren hem on hond, or bare him on hond; implying always, it appears to me, the same meaning as I have given to the words above. There is, I think, no doubt, that these expressions of Chaucer, which he has used several times in his works, are figurative; when Chaucer tells us he beren hem in hond, the literal meaning is, he carried it in, or on, his hand so that it might be readily seen. “To bear on hand, to affirm, to relate.”—JAMIESON’s Etymological Scots Dictionary. But, whatever be the meaning of these words in Chaucer, and at the present time in Scotland, the above is the meaning of them in the west of England.

Banes. s. pl. The banns of matrimony.

Ban’nin. s. That which is used for shutting out or stopping.

Barrow-pig. s. A gelt pig.

Baw’ker. } s. A stone used for whetting
Baw’ker-stone. } scythes; a kind of sand-stone.

To Becall’. v. a. To censure; to reprove; to chide.

Bee-but.

Bee-lippen. } s. A bee-hive.

Be’edy. s. A chick.

Beedy’s-eyes. s. pl. Pansy, love-in-idleness.

Beer. s. See ALE.

Befor’n. prep. Before.

To Begird’ge, } v. a. To grudge; to envy.
To Begrud’ge.

LORD BYRON has used the verb begrudge in his notes to the 2nd canto of Childe Harold.

Begor'z. Begum'mers. } interj.

It is not easy to define the meaning of these words; they indicate some determination of mind; and are, most probably, oaths of asseveration. The last appears to be a corruption of by godmothers. Both are thrown into discourse very frequently: Begummers, I ont tell; I cant do it, begorz.

Begrum'pled. part. Soured; offended.

To Belg. v. n. To cry aloud; to bellow.

Bell-flower. s. A daffodil.

To Belsh. v. a. To cut off dung, &c. from the tails of sheep.

To Benge. v. n. To remain long in drinking; to drink to excess.

Ben'net. s. Long coarse grass.

Ben'nety. adj. Abounding in bennets.

Ber'rin. s. A funeral procession.

To Beskum'mer. v. a. To foul with a dirty liquid; to besmear.

To Bethink'. v. a. To grudge.

Bettermost. adj. The best of the better; not quite amounting to the best.

Betwat'tled. part. In a distressing and confused state of mind.

To Betwit'. v. a. To upbraid ; to repeat a past circumstance aggravatingly.

To Bib'ble. v. n. To drink often ; to tope.

Bib'bler. s. One who drinks often ; a toper.

Bil'lid. adj. Distracted ; mad.

Billy. s. A bundle of wheat straw.

Bi'meby. adv. By-and-by ; some time hence.

Bin. conj. Because ; probably corrupted from, being.

Bin'nick. s. A small fish ; minnow ; Cyprinus phloxinus.

Bird-battin. s. The catching of birds with a net and lights by night. FIELDING uses this expression.

Bird-battin-net. s. The net used in bird-battin.

Birch'en. adj. Made of birch ; relating to birch.

Bis'gee. s. (g hard), A rooting axe.

To Biv'er. v. n. To quiver ; to shake.

Black-pot. s. Black-pudding.

Black'ymoor, s. A negro.

Blackymoor's-beauty. s. Sweet scabious ; the musk-flower.

Blan'ker. s. A spark of fire.

Blans'cue. s. Misfortune ; unexpected accident.

Bleächy. adj. Brackish ; saltish : applied to water.

Blind-buck-and-Davy. s. Blind-man's buff. Blind-buck and have ye, is no doubt the origin of this appellation for a well-known amusement.

Blis'som. ad. Blithesome.

Blood-sucker. s. A leech.

Bloody-warrior. s. The wall-flower.

Booäth. pron. Both. “ Booäth o' ye ;” both of you.

Bor'rid. adj. A sow is said to be borrid when she wants the male.

Bote. part. Bought.

Bow. s. A small arched bridge.

Boy's-love. s. Southernwood; a species of mugwort; artemisia abrotolomum.

Brave. adj. Well; recovering.

Bran. s. A brand; a stump of a tree, or other irregular and large piece of wood, fit only for burning. Hence, doubtless, the origin of Bonfire, a fire made of brans. See the next article.

Bran-viér. s. A fire made with brands. The supposed origin of it, bon, good fire, and hence usually spelled bon-fire, is evidently erroneous: it should be branfire or brandfire.

Bran'dis. s. A semicircular implement of iron, made to be suspended over the fire, on which various things may be prepared; it is much used for warming milk.

Brash. s. Any sudden development; a crash.

Brick'le, } adj. Not coherent; brittle.
Brick'ly, }

Brim'mle. s. A bramble.

To Bring gwain. v. a. [To bring going.] To spend; to accompany some distance on a journey.

To Brit. v. a. To indent; to make an impression: applied to solid bodies.

Brock. s. An irregular piece of peat dried for fuel ; a piece of turf. See TURF.

Bruck'le, } adj. Not coherent ; easily separable : applied to solid bodies. See BRICKLE.

Bruck'leness. s. The state of being bruckle.

To Bud'dle. v. To suffocate in mud.

To Bulge. v. a. To indent ; to make an irregular impression on a solid body ; to bruise. It is also used in a neuter sense.

Bulge. s. An indentation ; an irregular impression made on some solid body ; a swelling outwards or depression inwards.

Bul'len, adj. Wanting the bull.

Bul'lins. s. pl. Large black sloes ; a variety of the wild plum.

Bun'gee. s. (g hard), Any thing thick and squat.

Bunt, } s. Bolting cloth.

Bunting, } s. Bolting cloth.

Bunt. s. A bolting-mill.

To Bunt. v. a. To separate flour from the bran.

Bur'cot. s. A load.

Buss. s. f. half-grown calf.

But. s. A conical and peculiar kind of basket or trap used in large numbers for catching salmon in the river Parret. The term but, would seem to be a generic one, the actual meaning of which I do not know : it implies, however, some containing vessel or utensil. See BEE-BUT. But, applied to beef, always means buttock.

Butter-and-eggs. s. A variety of the daffodil.

Bwye. interj. Bye ! adieu. This, as well as good- bye and good-bwye, is evidently corrupted from God be with you; God-be-wi' ye, equivalent to the French à Dieu, to God. Bwye, and good-bwye, are, therefore, how vulgar soever they may seem, more analogous than bye and good-bye.

C.

CALLYVAN'. s. A pyramidal trap for catching birds.

Car'riter. s. Character.

Cat'terpillar. s. The cockchafer; Scarabæus melolontha.

West of the Parret this insect is called wock-web, oak-web, because it infests the oak, and spins its web on it in great numbers.

Chaítly. adj. Careful; nice; delicate.

To Cham. v. a. To chew.

Chámer. s. A chamber,

Change. s. A shift; the garment worn by females next the skin.

Chay'er. s. A chair; chayer—Chaucer.

Chick-a-beedy. s. A chick.

Chim'ley. s. A chimney.

Chine. s. The prominence of the staves beyond the head of a cask. This word is well known to coopers throughout England, and ought to be in our dictionaries.

To Chis'som. v. n. To bud; to shoot out.

Chis'som. s. A small shoot; a budding out.

Chit'terlins. s. pl. The frills around the bosom of a shirt.

Choor, s. A job ; any dirty household work ; a troublesome job.

Choor'er, s. A woman who goes out to do
Choor'-woman, s. any kind of odd and dirty work ;
 hence the term char-woman in our polished dialect ; but it ought to be choor-woman.

To Choóry. v. To do any kind of dirty household work.

Chub'by. adj. Full, swelling ; as chubby-faced.

Claps. s. A clasp.

To Claps. v. a. To clasp.

Clávy. s. A mantel-piece.

Clear-and-sheer. adv. Completely ; totally.

Cleve-pink. s. A species of carnation which grows wild in the crannies of Cheddar-cliffs : a variety, I believe, of the Dianthus deltoides ; it has an elegant smell.

To Clim. v. To climb ; to clamber.
To Climmer. v. To climb ; to clamber.

Clinkers. s. pl. Bricks or other earthy matter run into irregular shapes by the agency of heat.

Clinker-bell. s. An icicle.

Clint. v. a. To clench ; to finish ; to complete.

Cliver-and-Shiver. adv. Completely ; totally.

Clit, v. n. To become imperfectly fermented : applied to bread.

Clit'ty. adj. Imperfectly fermented.

Clize. s. A place or drain for the discharge of water regulated by a valve or door, which permits a free egress, but no ingress to the water.

Coathe. v. a. To bane : applied to sheep.

Cob-wall. s. Mud-wall ; a wall made of clay mixed with straw.

Cock-lawt. s. A garret ; cock-loft.

☞ Originally, most probably, a place where the fowls roosted.

Cock-squailing. s. A barbarous game, consisting in tying a cock to a stake, and throwing a stick at him from a given distance, so as to destroy the bird. I fear that cock-squailing has not wholly disappeared from our west country sports.

Cock-and-Mwile. s. A jail.

Col'ley. s. A blackbird.

Comforts. s. pl. Sugared corianders, cinnamon, &c.

Com'ical. adj. Odd ; singular.

Contraption. s. Contrivance ; management.

To Count. v. n. To think ; to esteem.

Cow-baby. s. A coward ; a timid person.

To Crap. { v. n. to snap ; to break with a
To Crap'py, { sudden sound ; to crack.

Crap. s. A smart sudden sound.

Creem. s. Sudden shivering.

Creémy. adj. Affected with sudden shivering.

Crips. adj. Crisp.

Criss-cross-lain. s. The alphabet ; so called in consequence of its being formerly preceded in the horn-book by a +, which was, no doubt, devised by some of the sons of the church to remind us of the cross of Christ ; hence the term

Christ-Cross-line, ultimately came to mean nothing more than the alphabet.

Crock. s. A bellied pot, either of iron or other metal, for the purpose of boiling food.

Croom. s. A crumb; a small bit.

Crowd-string. s. A fiddle-string.

Crowdy-kit. s. A small fiddle.

Cutty. s. A wren.
Cutty-wren. s. A wren.

D.

DAD'DICK. s. Rotten wood.

Dad'dicky. adj. Rotten, like daddick.

Dame. s. This word is, of course, originally French, and means, in that language, as we all know, lady; but in this dialect it means a mistress; an old woman: and is never used in the sense of lady ; nor is it ever applied to persons in the upper ranks of society, nor to the very lowest ; when we say dame Hurman, or dame Bennet, we mean the wife of some farmer ; a school-mistress is also sometimes called dame ; it is rarely, if ever, applied to a young woman.

Dap. v. n. To hop ; to rebound.

Dap. s. A hop ; a turn. To know the daps of a person is, to know his disposition, his habits, his peculiarities.

Dap'ster. s. A proficient.

To Daver. v. n. To fade ; to fall down ; to droop.

Davison. s. A species of wild plum, superior to the bullin.

Dawzin. s. The passing over land with a bent hazel rod, held in a certain direction, to discover whether veins of metals are below, is called Dawzin, which is still occasionally practised in the mining districts of Somersetshire. There is an impression among the vulgar, that certain persons only have the gift of the divining rod, as it has been sometimes called ; by the French, Baguette Devinatoire. Polished and intelligent society is not, I believe, yet entirely free from this apparent folly.

Des'perd. adj. [Corrupted from desperate.] Very, extremely ; it is used in a good as well as a bad sense : desperd good ; desperd bad.

Dewberry. s. A species of blackberry.

Dibs. s. pl. Money.

To Downarg. v. a. To contradict ; to contend with.

Dowst. s. Dust ; money ; Down wi' tha dowst !
Put down the money !

Draf'fit. s. [I suppose from draught-vat.] A vessel to hold pot-liquor and other refuse alien from the kitchen, for pigs.

Drang. s. A narrow path.

To Drash. v. a. To thresh.

Dras'hel. s. The threshold ; a flail.

Dras'her. s. A thresher.

Drawt. s. Throat.

To Drean. v. n. To drawl in reading or speaking.

Drean. s. A drawling in reading or speaking.

To Dring. v. n. To throng ; to press, as in a crowd ; to thrust.

Drin'get. s. A crowd ; a throng

To Dro. v. a. To throw.

Drode. part. Thrown.

To Drool. v. n. To drivel.

To Drow. $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} v. n. \\ v. a. \end{array} \right\}$ To dry.

☞ The hay do'nt drony at all. See the observations which precede this vocabulary.

Drowth. s. Dryness ; thirst.

Drow'thy. adj. Dry ; thirsty.

Drove. s. A road leading to fields, and sometimes from one village to another. The name is doubtless derived from its being a way along which cattle are driven. RAY uses the word in his Catalogus Plantarum Angliae, &c. under the article Chondrilla.

☞ This meaning is now, I observe, in Todd's Johnson, the 5th of DROVE, s.

To Drub. $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} v. n. \\ v. a. \end{array} \right\}$ To throb ; to beat.

Drubbin. s. A beating.

To Druck. v. a. To thrust down ; to crani, to press.

Dub.

Dub'by.

Dub'bin. s. Suet.

To Dud'der. v. a. To deafen with noise ; to render the head confused.

Duds. s. pl. Dirty cloaths.

Dum'bledore. s. A humble-bee ; a stupid fellow.

Dunch. adj. Deaf.

☞ It seems singular that none of our etymologists have noticed this word, the most probable etymon of DUNCE, as it assuredly is. As a deaf person is very often, apparently at least, stupid ; a stupid, intractable person is, therefore, called a DUNCE : one who is deaf and intractable. What now becomes of Duns Scotus, and all the rest of the recondite observations bestowed upon DUNCE ?

See Todd's Johnson.

☞ I have no doubt that Dunch is Anglo-Saxon, although I cannot find it in any of our dictionaries, except Bailey's. But it ought not to be forgotten, that many words are floating about which have never yet been arrested by a dictionary maker.

Durns, s. pl. A door-frame.

E.

EAR-WRIG. s. Earwig.

☞ This word ought to be spelled Ear-wrig, as it is derived, doubtless, from wriggle. See WRIGGLE.

El'men. adj. Of or belonging to elm ; made of elm.

El'ver. s. A young eel.

Em'mers. s. pl. Embers.

Emmet-batch, s. An ant-hill.

F.

FAGS! interj. Truly ; indeed.

Fayer. s. and adj. Fair.

To Fell. v. a. To sew in a particular manner ; to inseam.

☒ This word is well known to the ladies, I believe, all over the kingdom ; it ought to be in our dictionaries.

Fester. s. An inflammatory tumour.

Few. } adj. More commonly pronounced veo.

Fig. s. A raisin.

Figged-pudding. s. A pudding with raisins in it ; plum-pudding.

Fildèfare. s. A Fieldfare. “ Farewell fieldèfare.”

Chaucer. This expression is occasionally heard. It means, I apprehend, that, as fieldfares disappear at a particular season, the season is over ; the bird is flown.

Fil'try. s. Filth ; nastiness ; rubbish.

Fitch. } s. A pole-cat. As cross as a fitchet.
Fitchet. }

Gig'leting. adj. Wanton ; trifling ; applied to the female sex.

Gilaw'fer. s. A term applied to all the kinds of flowers termed stocks ; and also to a few others : as a Whitsuntide gilanfer, a species of Lychnidea.

Gim'mace. s. A hinge.

Gim'maces. s. pl. When a criminal is gibbeted, or hung in irons or chains, he is said to be hung in Gimmaces, most probably because the apparatus swings about as if on hinges.

Ginnin. s. Beginning.

To Glare. v. a. To glaze earthenware.

Glare. s. The glaze of earthenware.

 This word, without the apostrophe, Glore, is to be found in Todd's Johnson, and there defined fat. The true meaning is, I doubt not, as above : fat g'lore, is fat in plenty.

Gold. s. The shrub called sweet-willow or wild myrtle ; Myrica gale.

This plant grows only in peat soils ; it is abundant in the boggy moors of Somersetshire ; it has a powerful and fragrant smell.

Gold-cup. s. A species of crow-foot, or ranunculus, growing plentifully in pastures ; ranunculus pratensis.

☞ Applied to such instruments as knives, awls, &c.

Hathe. s. To be in a hathe, is to be set thick and close like the pustules of the small-pox or other eruptive disease ; to be matted closely together.

To Have. v. n. To behave.

Hay-maidens. s. pl. Ground ivy.

Hay'ty-tayty. Interj. What's here !

In Hay'digees. [g. soft] adv. To be in high spirits ; to be frolicsome.

Hea'ram-skearam. adj. Wild ; romantic.

To Heel. v. a. To hide ; to cover. Chaucer, “hele.” Hence, no doubt, the origin of our common verb, to heal, to cure, as applied to wounds ; to cover over.

Heeler. s. One who hides or covers. Hence the very common expression, The heeler is as bad as the stealer ; that is, the receiver is as bad as the thief.

Heft. s. Weight.

To Hell. v. a. To pour. To hell in, to pour in ; to hell out, to pour out.

Hick-step and jump. Hop-step-and-jump.

A well known exercise.

To Hike off. v. n. To go away ; to go off.

☞ Used generally in a bad sense.

Hine. adj. Posterior ; relating to the back part.

☞ Used only in composition, as, a hine quarter.

To Hire tell. v. n. To hear tell ; to learn by report ; to be told.

Hip'pety-hoppety. adv. In a limping and hobbling manner.

To Hirn. v. n. [hirnd, pret. and part.] To run.

To Hitch. v. n. To become entangled or hooked together; to hitch up, to hang up or be suspended. See the next word.

To Hitch up. v. a. To suspend or attach slightly, or temporarily.

☞ These verbs have given considerable trouble to our etymologists and lexicographers. Dr. Johnson evidently did not know their meaning. To HITCH, v. n. implies, as in the first meaning in Todd's Johnson as above, to become entangled or hooked together: thus brambles hitch in ladies' clothes. To hitch up, is to hang up or be suspended. In the following lines,

Whoe'er offends at some unlucky time,
Slides into verse, or hitches in a rhyme,
Sacred to ridicule his whole life long,
And the sad burthen of some merry song.

Pope's Sat.

Had Pope placed the preposition up after hitch, the sense would have been immediately obvious, it implying that whoever offends the poet, slides into verse, or hitches up in a rhyme; i. e. a rhyme being the most conspicuous place in the verse, he is there hung up, exposed to public view, sacred to ridicule, &c. To hitch up, is also used in the West of England as an active verb: thus, you hitch up your horse at the gate, while you call on your friend; you hitch up your hat on a peg in the hall.

In all these meanings of to hitech, and to hitch up, slight attachment is implied, and, for this reason, the word is not synonymous with to hang, or to hang up. It is true, Mr. Pope's use of the word implies permanence ; but this is a licentia poetica.

The following will exemplify the active meaning of this verb :

Sir Strut, for so the witling throng
Oft called him when at school,
And hitch'd him up in many a song
To sport and ridicule.

To Ho for, } v. a. To provide for ; to take care
To Haw vor, } of ; to desire ; to wish for.

Hud. s. A hull, or husk.

Huf. s. A hoof.

Huf-cap. s. A plant, or rather weed, found in fields, and with difficulty eradicated.

I regret that I cannot identify this plant with any known botanical name. The following lines will be found in the Satires of Bishop Hall :

Graced with huff-cap terms and thundering threats,
That his poor hearers' hair quite upright sets.

Book I. Sat. iii.

Some editor of Hall has endeavoured to explain the term huff-cap by blustering, swaggering. I think it simply means difficult.

Hug. s. The itch. See SHAB.

☞ Commonly, but not always, applied to brutes.

Hug-water. s. Water to cure the hug. See SHAB.

To Hul'der. v. a. To hide; conceal.

To Hulve. v. a. To turn over; to turn upside down.

Hum'drum. s. A small low three-wheeled cart, drawn usually by one horse; used occasionally in agriculture.

☞ From the peculiarity of its construction, it makes a kind of humming noise when it is drawn along; hence, I presume, the origin of the adjective humdrum. Those who have once seen and heard this vehicle in motion, will have a better conception of the term humdrum than any words can convey.

Hunt-the-slipper. s. A well-known play.

I.

I. adv. Yes; I, I, yes, yes: most probably a corrupt pronunciation of ay.

Inin. s. Onion.

J.

JACK-in-the-Lanthorn } s. The meteor usually and } called a Will with the
 Joan-in-the-Wad. } Wisp.

 The existence of this phenomenon has been often doubted; the late Dr. Darwin disbelieved in its reality altogether. Although conversant with marshy and boggy districts of the kingdom, I have never seen it. Its actual existence is, I think, very questionable; although there is decidedly nothing improbable in it. Dr. Ure, in his Chemical Dictionary, article Ignis Fatuus, seems, however, to admit its existence; and attributes it to the extrication of phosphorus from rotten leaves and other vegetable matter.

Kex. } s. The dry stalks of some plants, such as Kexy. } Cows-parsley and Hemlock, are called Kexies. As dry as a kexy is a common simile.

Kill. s. A kiln.

Kil'ter. s. Money.

King'bow, or rather, a-kingbow. adv. Kimbo.

☞ Chaucer has this word kenebow, which is, perhaps, the true one—a kenebow, implying a bow with a keen or sharp angle.

“ He set his hand in kenebow.”

CHAUCER, Second Merchant's Tale.

If this be not the origin of the phrase, another probable one may be mentioned, and the present sound of it in the West countenances it. To place the arms a-Kingbow, may be to place them in a consequential manner of commanding, like a king.

Kir'cher. s. The midriff; the diaphragm.

Kit. s. A tribe; a collection; a gang.

Kit'tle. Kit-smock. s. A smock frock.

Lim'bers. { s. pl. The shafts of a waggon, cart, Lim'mers. } &c.

Linch. s. A ledge ; a rectangular projection ; whence the term linch-pin (a pin with a lynch), which JOHNSON has, but not linch.

☞ The derivations of this word, linch-pin by our etymologists, it will be seen, are now inadmissible.

To Line. v. n. To lean ; to incline towards or against something.

Lin'ny. s. An open shed, attached to barns, out-houses, &c.

Lip. { s. A Generic term for several contain-Lip'pen. } ing vessels, as bee-lippen, lie-lip, seed-lip, &c. which see.

Lip'ary. adj. Wet, rainy. Applied to the seasons : a lipary time.

To Lir'rop. v. a. To beat.

To Pog. v. n. and v. a. To thrust with the fist ; to push.

Pog. s. A thrust with the fist ; a push ; an obtuse blow.

Poh ! interj. An expression of contempt.

 Todd's Johnson has not this word, but surely it ought to be there ; it is not merely a provincialism.

To Pom'ster v. n. To tamper with, particularly in curing diseases ; to quack.

Pont'ed. part. Bruised with indentation.

 I think there is also the verb to pont, but I have no recollection of its application. Any person whose skin or body generally is puffed up by disease, and subject to occasional pitting by pressure, is said to be ponted ; but the primary meaning is applied to fruit, as, a ponted apple : in both meanings incipient decay is implied.

Pook. s. The belly ; the stomach ; a yell.

Popple. s. A pebble : that is, a stone worn smooth, and more or less round, by the action of the waves of the sea.

Pottle-bellied. adj. Potbellied.

To Rose. v. n. To drop out from the pod, or other seed vessel, when the seeds are over-ripe.

Round-dock. s. The common mallow ; malva sylvestris.

☞ Called round-dock from the roundness of its leaves. CHAUCER has the following expression, which has a good deal puzzled the glossarists :

“ But canst thou playin racket to and fro,
“ Nettle in Docke out, now this, now that, Pandare?”
Troilus and Cressida, Book IV.

The round-dock leaves are used at this day as a remedy, or supposed remedy or charm, for the sting of a nettle, by being rubbed on the stung part ; and the rubbing is accompanied, by the more superstitious, with the following words—

*In dock, out nettle,
Nettle have a stingd me.*

That is, Go in dock, go out nettle. Now, to play Nettle in Dock out, is to make use of such expedients as shall drive away or remove some previous evil, similar to that of driving out the venom of the nettle by the juice or charm of the dock.

Roz'im. s. A quaint saying ; a low proverb.

Rud'derish. adj. Hasty, rude, without care.

Ruf. s. A roof.

Rum'pus. s. A great noise.

~~as~~ This word ought to be in Todd's Johnson.

Rungs. s. pl. The round steps of a ladder.

S.

THE sound of S is very often converted into the sound of Z. Thus many of the following words, Sand-tot, Sar, Seed-lip, Silker, Sim, &c. are often pronounced Zand-tot, Zar, Zeeäd-lip, Zilker, Zim, &c.

Sand-tot. s. A sandhill.

Scrawf. s. Refuse.

Scrawv'lin. adj. Poor and mean, like scrawf.

Screed. s. A shred.

To Scrunch, v. a. and v. n. I know not any synonym in our language for this word. The act of crushing and bringing closer together is implied, accompanied also with some kind of noise. A person may be said to scrunch an apple or a biscuit, if in eating it he made a noise ; so a pig in eating acorns. Agreeably to this, Mr. SOUTHEY has used the word, in Thalaba :

“ No sound but the wild, wild wind,
“ And the snow crunching under his feet.”

And, again, in the Anthology, vol. 2, p. 240

“ Grunting as they crunch'd the mast.”

But he spells it without the s.

Scud. s. A scab.

Sea-Bottle. s. Many of the species of the sea-wrack, or fucus, are called sea-bottles, in consequence of the stalks having round or oval vesicles or pods in them ; the pod itself.

To Tite. v. a. To weigh.

Tite, s. Weight. The tite of a pin, the weight of a pin.

Todo'. s. A bustle ; confusion.

To Toll. v. a. To entice ; to allure.

Toor. s. The toe.

Tosty. s. See TEESTY-TOSTY.

Tote. s. The whole. This word is commonly used for intensity, as the whol tote, from totus, Latin.

To Tot'tle. v. n. To walk in a tottering manner, like a child.

Touse. s. A blow on some part of the head.

Towards. prep. is, in Somersetshire, invariably pronounced as a dissyllable, with the accent on the last : to-ward's. Our polite pronunciation, tordz, is clearly a corruption.

Tower. s. A square elevated building, usually placed at the west end of the church.

Tramp. s. A walk ; a journey.

 To Tramp. v. n. and Tramper. s. will be found in Todd's Johnson, where also this word ought to be.

To Trapes. v. n. To go to and fro in the dirt.

Trapes. s. A slattern.

Trub'agully. s. A short, dirty, ragged fellow, accustomed to perform the most menial offices.

To Truckle. v. a. and v. n. To roll.

Truckle. s. A globular or circular piece of wood or iron, placed under another body, in order to move it readily from place to place. A Truckle-bed, is a small bed placed upon truckles, so that it may be readily moved about.

 These, I have no doubt, are the primary, as they are now the common meanings in the West, of To truckle, v. Truckle, s. and Truckle-bed.

Tun. s. A chimney.

Tun'negar. s. A funnel.

Turf. s. pl. Turves. Peat cut into pieces and dried for fuel.

Turn-string. s. A string made of twisted gut, much used in spinning. See WORRA.

To Tus'sle. v. n. To struggle with ; to contend.

Tut. s. A hassock.

Tut-work. s. Work done by the piece or contract ; not work by the day.

Tuth'er. pron. The other.

Tuth'eram. } pron. The others.
Tuth'ermy. } pron. The others.

Tut'ty. s. A flower ; a nosegay.

To Twick. v. a. To twist or jerk suddenly.

Twick. s. A sudden twist or jerk.

Twil'y. adj. Restless ; wearisome.

Twi'ripe. adj. Imperfectly ripe.

U.

Unk'et. adj. Dreary, dismal, lonely.

To Unray'. v. a. To undress.

To Untang'. v. a. To untie.

To Up. v. n. To arise.

Up'pin-stock. s. A horse-block. See LIGHTING-STOCK.

Upsi'des. adv. On an equal or superior footing.

To be upsides with a person, is to do something which shall be equivalent to, or of greater importance or value than what has been done by such person to us.

Utch'y. pron. I. This word is not used in the Western or Eastern, but only in the Southern parts of the County of Somerset. It is, manifestly, a corrupt pronunciation of Ich, or Ichè, pronounced as two syllables, the Anglo-Saxon word for I. What shall utchy do ? What shall I do.

I think Chaucer sometimes uses iche as a dissyllable ; vide his Poems passim. Ch'am, is I am, that is, ich am ; ch'll, is I will, ich will. See Shakespeare's King Lear, Act. IV.

Scene VI. What is very remarkable, and which confirms me greatly in the opinion which I here state, upon examining the first folio edition of Shakespeare, at the London Institution, I find that ch is printed, in one instance, with a mark of elision before it thus, 'ch, a proof that the i in iche was sometimes dropped in a common and rapid pronunciation. In short, this mark of elision ought always so to have been printed, which would, most probably, have prevented the conjectures which have been hazarded upon the origin of the meaning of such words as chud, chill, and cham. It is singular enough that Shakespeare has the ch for iche I, and Ise for I, within the distance of a few lines in the passage above alluded to, in King Lear. But, perhaps, not more singular than that in Somersetshire may, at the present time, be heard for the pronoun I, Utchy, or iche, and Ise. In the Western parts of Somersetshire, as well as in Devonshire, Ise is now used very generally for I. The Germans of the present day pronounce, I understand, their ich sometimes as it is pronounced in the West Ise, which is the sound we give to frozen water, ice. See Miss HAM's letter, towards the conclusion of this work.

V.

VAGE. } s. A voyage ; but more commonly applied Vaze. } to the distance employed to increase the in-tensity of motion or action from a given point.

To Vang. v. a. To receive ; to earn.

Vare. s. A species of weasel.

To Vare. v. n. To bring forth young : applied to pigs and some other animals.

Var'mint. s. A vermin.

Vaught. part. Fetched.

Vur vaught,

(i. e.) Far-fetched, and dear bought.

Vawth. s. A bank of dung or earth prepared for manure.

To Vay. v. n. To succeed ; to turn out well ; to go. This word is, most probably, derived from the French verb aller, to go.

ꝝ It dont vay ; i. e. it does not go on well.

To Vaze. v. n. To move about a room, or a house, so as to agitate the air.

Veel'vare. s. A fieldfare.

Veel. s. A field ; corn land uninclosed.

Zât. adj. Soft.

Za'tenfare. adj. Softish: applied to the intellects.

To Zam. v. a. To heat for sometime over the fire, but not to boil.

Zam'zod. } adj. Any thing heated for a long Zam'zodden. } time in a low heat so as to be in part spoiled, is said to be zamzodden.

 Conjecture, in etymology, may be always busy. It is not improbable that this word is a compound of semi, Latin, half; and to seethe, to boil: so that Zamzodden will then mean, literally, half-boiled.

Zand. s. Sand.

Zandy. adj. Sandy.

Zaud-tot. s. A sand-hill.

To Zee. v. a. pret. and part. Zid. To see.

Zeeäd. s. Seed.

Zeeäd-lip. See SEED-LIP.

Zel. pron. Self.

Zen'vy. s. Wild mustard.

 It is often very difficult to trace corrupted and contracted words to their sources.

This word has, by some etymologist, been supposed a derivation from sainfoin; but sainfoin is not mustard. The true etymology will be seen at once in sénevé, French, from sinapi, Latin, contracted and corrupted to Zenvy, Somersetian.

Zil'ker. s. See SILKER.

Zog. s. Soft, boggy land; moist land.

Zog'gy. adj. Boggy; wet.

To Zound. } v. n. To swoon.
To Zoun'dy. }

To Zuf'fy. v. n. See To SUFFY.

Zug'gers! interj. This is a word, like others of the same class, the precise meaning of which it is not easy to define. I confess, that I cannot define it with any satisfaction to myself. I dare say it is a composition of two, or more words, greatly corrupted in pronunciation.

Zull. s. The instrument used for ploughing land; a plough.

Zunz. adv. Since.

Zum'met. pron. Somewhat; something.

To Zwail. v. n. To move about with the arms extended, and up and down.

To Zwang. v. a. and v. n. To swing; to move to and fro.

Zwang. s. A swing.

To Zwell. v. a. To swell; to swallow. See To SWELL.

Zwod'der. s. A drowsy and stupid state of body or mind.

ꝝ Derived, most probably, from sudor, Latin, a sweat.

POEMS,
AND
EXEMPLIFYING THE DIALECT
OF THE County of Somerset.

¶ Notwithstanding the Author has endeavoured, in the Observations on the Dialects of the West, and in The Glossary, to obviate the difficulties under which strangers to the dialect of Somersetshire may, very possibly, labour in the perusal of the following Poems, it may be, perhaps, useful here to remind the reader, that many mere inversions of sound, and differences in pronunciation, are not noted in the Glossary. That it did not appear necessary to explain such words as wine, wind ; wordle, world ; zâ, say ; qut, coat ; bwile, boil ; hoss, horse ; hirches, riches ; and many others, which it is presumed the context, the Observations, or the Glossary, will sufficiently explain. The Author, therefore, trusts, that by a careful attention to these, the reader will soon become au fait at the interpretation of these West-country LIDDENS.

GOOD BWYE TA THEE COT,

IF I could bid thee, pleasant shade, farewell
Without a sigh, amidst whose circling bowers
My stripling prime was pass'd, and happiest hours ;
Dead were I to the sympathies that swell
The human breast.

BOWLES,

GOOD BWYE TA THEE COT!

Good bwyte ta thee Cot! whaur tha dâs o' my childhood

Glaw'd bright as tha zun in a mornin o' mâ;
When tha dumbledores hummin, eraup out o' tha cob-wâll,
An, shakin ther whings, thâ vleed vooäth an awâ.*

Good bwyte ta thee Cot!—on thy drashel, a-mâ-be,
I niver naw moor sholl my voot again zet;
Tha jessamy awver thy poorch zweetly bloomin,
Whauriver I goo, I sholl niver vorget.

* This fact, in natural history, is well known to those acquainted with mud-walls and mud-wall houses. The humble-bee, bombylius major, or dumbledore, as it is here called, makes holes very commonly in these walls, in which it deposits a kind of farina: but it never, in such holes, as far as I have observed, deposits honey; in this bee will be found, nevertheless, on dissection, a considerable portion of that delicious sweet.

Tha rawzes, tha lillies, that blaw in tha borders—
 The gilawfers, too, that I us'd ta behawld—
 Tha trees, wi' tha honeyzucks ranglin âll awver,
 I âlways sholl think o' nif I shood be awld.

Tha tutties that oten I pick'd on a zunday,
 And stickt in my qut—thâ war thawted za fine ;
 Aw how sholl I tell o'm—vor âll pirty maidens
 When I pass'd 'em look'd back—ther smill rawze on tha wine.

Good bwye ta thee Ash ! which my Father beforne me,
 A planted, wi' pleasure, tha dâ I war born ;
 Zâ, oolt thou drap a tear when I cease to behawld thee,
 An wander awâ droo tha wordle vorlorn.

Good bwye ta thee Tree ! an thy cawld shade in zummer ;
 Thy apples, aw who ool be lotted ta shake ?
 When tha wine, mangst thy boughs sifes at Mile-mas in sorrow,
 Zâ oolt thou sife for me, or one wild wish awake ?

Good bwye ye dun Elves ! who, on whings made
o' leather,

Still roun my poorch whiver an whiver at night ;

Aw mâ naw hord-horted, unveelin disturber,
Destrây your snug nests, an your plâ by moonlight.

Good bwye ta thee Bower !—ta thy moss an thy ivy—

To tha flowers thataroun thee âll blossomin graw ;
When I'm gwon, oolt thou grieve ?—bit 'tis foolish to ax it;

What is ther that's shower in this wordle belaw ?

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! whaur my mother za thoughtvul,

As zumtimes she war droo er care vor us âll,

Er lessins wi' kindness, wi' tenderness gid us ;

An ax'd us, war she dead, what ood us bevâll.

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! whaur tha nightingale's music,

In tha midnight o' Mâ-time, rawze loud on the ear ;

Whaur tha colley awâk'd, wi' tha zun, an a zingin
A went, wi' tha dirsh, in a voice vull and clear.

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! I must goo ta tha city, Whaur, I'm tawld, that tha smawk makes it
 dork at noon dâ ;
 Bit nif it is true, I'm afeard that I âlways
 And iver sholl thenk on tha cot thatch'd wi' strâ.

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! there is One that râins
 awver,
 An wâches tha wordle, wi' wisdom divine ;
 Than why shood I mang, wi' tha many, my ma-bes ;
 Bin there's readship in Him, an to him I resign.

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! shood I niver behauld thee
 Again ; still I thank thee vor âll that is past !
 Thy friendly ruf shulter'd—while mother wâtch'd
 awver,
 An haw'd vor my comfort vrom vust unto last.

Good bwye ta thee Cot ! vor the time mâ be longful
 Befforn I on thy drashel again zet my eye ;
 Thy tutties ool blossom, an daver an blossom
 Again and again—zaw good bwye, an good bwye !

FANNY FEAR.

THE melancholy incident related in the following story, actually occurred a few years ago at Shapwick.

FANNY FEAR.

Good Gennel-vawk ! an if you please
To lissen to my storry,
A mâ-be 'tis a jitch a one,
Ool make ye zummet zorry.

'Tis not a hoozay tale of grief,
A put wi' ort together,
That where you cry, or where you laugh,
Da matter not a veather ;

Bit 'tis a tale vor sartin true,
Wi' readship be it spawken ;
I knaw it âll, begummers ! well,
By tale, eese, an by tawken.

Tha maid's right name war FANNY FEAR,
A tidy body lookin' ;
An she cood brew, and she cood bake,
An dumplins bwile, and skimmer cake ;
An âll the like o' cookin'.

Upon a Zunday âternoon,
Beforne the door a stanin',
To zee er chubby cheaks za hird,
An whitist lillies roun 'em spird,
A damas rawze her han in,

Ood do your hort good ; and er eyes,
Dork, vull, an bright, an sporklin' ;
Tha country lads could not goo by,
Bit look thâ must—she iver shy,
Ood blish—tha timid lorklin' !

Her dame war to her desperd kind ;
She knew'd er well dezarvin :
She gid her good advice an claws,
At which she niver toss'd er naws,
As zum ool, thawf pon starvin.

She oten yarly upp'd to goo
 A milkin o' tha dairy ;
 Tha meads ring'd loudly wi' er zong ;
 Aw how she birsh'd the grass along,
 As lissom as a vairy !

She war as happy as a prince ;
 Naw princess moor o' pleasure
 When well-at-eased cood iver veel ;
 She ly'd her head upon her peel,
 An vound athin a treasure.

There war a dessent comly youth,
 Who took'd to her a likin ;
 An when a don'd iz zunday claws,
 You'd thenk en zummet, I suppaws,
 A look'd zo desperd strikin.

Hiz vace war like a zummer dâ,
 When âll tha birds be zingin ;
 Smiles an good nature dimplin stood,
 An moor besides, an âll za good,
 Much pleasant promise bringin.

Now Jan war sawber, and afeard
Nif he in haste shood morry,
That he mid long repent thereof ;
An zo a thawt 'twar best not, thawf
To stâ mid make en zorry.

Jan oten pass'd the happy door,
There Fanny stood a scrubbin ;
An Fanny hired hiz pleasant voice,
An thawt—" An if she had er choice!"
An veel'd athin a drubbin.

Bit Jan did'n hulder long iz thawts ;
Vor thorough iv'ry cranny,
Hirn'd of iz hort tha warm hird tide ;
An a cood na moor iz veelins bide,
Bit tell 'em must to Fanny.

To Fanny, than, one Whitsun eve,
A tawld er how a lov'd er ;
Naw dove, a zed, to er cood be Moor faithvul than to her ood he ;
His hort had long appruv'd er.

Wi' timorous blishin, Fanny zed,
“ A maid mist not believe ye ;
“ Vor men ool tell ther lovin tale,
“ And awver seely maids prevail—
“ Bit I dwont like ta grieve ye :

“ Vor nif za be you now zâ true—
“ That you've vor I a fancy :
“ (Aw Jan ! I dwont veel desperd well,
“ An what's tha câze, I cannot tell,)
“ You'll zâ na moor to Nancy.”

Twar zaw begin'd their zweetortin ;
Booäth still liv'd in their places :
Zometimes thâ met bezides tha stile ;
Wi' pleasant look an tender smile
Gaz'd in each wither's faces.

In spreng-time oten on tha nap
Ood Jan and Fanny linger ;
An when war vooä'sd to zâ “ good bwye,”
Ood meet again, wi' draps in eye,
While haup ood pwint er vinger.

Zo pass'd tha dâs—tha moons awâ,
 An haup still whiver'd nigh ;
 Nif Fanny's dreams high pleasures vill,
 Of her Jan's thawts the lidden still,
 An oten too the zigh.

Bit still Jan had not got wherewi'
 To venter eet to morry ;
 Alas-a-dâ ! when poor vawk love,
 How much restraint how many pruv ;
 How zick zum an how zorry.

Aw you who live in houzen grate,
 An wherewi' much possessin,
 You knew not, mâ-be, care not you,
 What pangs jitch tender horts pursue,
 How grate nor how distressin.

Jan sar'd a varmer vour long years,
 An now iz haups da brighten :
 A gennelman of high degree
 Choos'd en iz hunsman vor to be ;
 His Fanny's hort da lighten !

“ Now, Fan,” zed he, “ nif I da live,
“ Nex zummer thee bist mine ;
“ Sir John ool gee me wauges good,
“ Amâ-be too zum viér ood !”—
His Fan’s dork eyes did shine.

“ To haw vor thee, my Fan,” a cried,
“ I iver sholl delight ;
“ Thawf I be poor, ’tool be my pride
“ To ha my Fan vor a buxom bride—
“ My lidden dâ an night.”

A took er gently in iz orms
An kiss’d er za zweetly too ;
His Fan, vor jay, not a word cood speak,
Bit a big roun tear rawl’d down er cheak,
It zimm’d as thawf er hort ood break—
She cood hordly thenk it true.

To zee our hunsman goo abroad,
His houns behind en volly ;
His tossel’d cap—his whip’s smort smack,
His hoss a prancin wi’ tha crack,
His whissle, horn, an holler, back !
Ood cure âll malancholy.

It happ'd on a dork an wintry night,
 Tha stormy wine a blawin ;
 Tha houns made a naise an a dismal yell ;
 Jitch as zum vawk zâ da death vaurtell,
 Tha cattle loud war lawin.

Tha hunsman wâkid an down a went ;
 A thawt ta keep 'em quiet ;
 A niver stopped izzel ta dress,
 Bit a went in iz shirt vor readiness ;
 A youn a dirdful riot.

Bit âll thic night a did not come back ;
 All night tha dogs did raur ;
 In tha mornin thâ look'd on tha kannel stwons
 An zeed 'em cover'd wi' gaur an bwons,
 The vlesh âll vrom 'em a taur.

 Who lov'd hiz Fanny za well ;
 An a bizzy gossip, as gossips be Who've work o' ther awn bit vrom it vlee,
 To Fanny went ta tell.

She hirn'd, she vleed ta meet tha man
Who corr'd er dear Jan's head :
An when she zeed en âll blood an gaur,
She drapp'd down speechless jist avaur,
As thauf she had bin dead.

Poor Fanny com'd ta erzel again,
Bit her senses left her vor iver !
An âll she zed, by dâ or night—
Vor sleep it left her eye-lids quite—
War, “ why did he goo in tha cawld ta shiver ?—
“ Niver, O Jan ! sholl I zee thee, niver. ! ”*

JERRY NUTTY ;

OR

THE MAN OF MORK.

$$\frac{d}{dt} \tilde{q}_k$$

JERRY NUTTY ;

OR

THE MAN OF MORK.

AWA wi' âll yer tales o' grief,
An dismal storry writin ;
A mâ-be zumthin I mâ zing
Ool be as much delightin.

Zumtime agoo, bevaur tha moors
War tin'd in, lived at Mork
One JERRY NUTTY—spry a war ;
A upp'd avaur tha lork.

Iz vather in a little cot
Liv'd, auver-right tha moor,
An thaw a kipt a vlock o' geese,
A war a thoughted poor.

A niver teach'd tha cris-cross-lain
Ta any of his bways,
An Jerry, mangst the rest o'm, did
Not much appruv his ways.

Vor Jerry zumtimes went ta church
Ta hire tha Pâson preach,
An thawt what pity that ta read
Izzel a cood'n teach.

Vor than, a zunday âternoon,
Tha Bible, or good book
Would be companion vit vor'm âll
Who choos'd therein ta look.

Bit Jerry than tha naise o' geese
Bit little moor could hire ;
An dâly goose-aggs ta pick up
Droo-out tha moor did tire.

A ôten look'd upon tha hills
An stickle mountains roun,
An wish'd izzel upon ther taps :
What zights a ood be boun !

Bit what did mooäst iz fancy strick
War Glassenberry Torr :
A âlways zeed it when tha zun
Gleam'd wi' tha mornin stor.

O' Well's grate church a ôten hired,
Iz fancy war awake ;
An saw a thawt that zoon a ood
A journey to it make.

An Glassenberry's Torr, an Thorn
The hawly blowth of which
A hired vrom one and tother too ;
Tha like war niver jitch !

Bit moor o' this I need not zâ,
Vor off went Jerry Nutty,
In hiz right hon a wâkin stick,
An in hiz qut a tutty.

Now, lock-y-zee ! in whimly dress
Trudg'd chearful Jerry on ;
Bit on tha moor not vur a went—
A made a zudden ston.

Which wâ ta goo a cood not thenk,
 Vor there war many a wâ ;
 A put upright iz wâlking stick ;
 A vâll'd ta tha zon o' dâ.

Ta tha suthard than iz wâ a took Athert tha turfy moors,
 An zoon o' blissom Cuzziton,*
 A pass'd tha cottage doors.

Tha maidens o' tha cottages,
 Not us'd strange vawk to zee,
 Com'd vooäth and stood avaur tha door ;
 Jer wonder'd what cood be.

Zum smil'd, zum whecker'd, zum o'm blish'd.
 " Od dang it !" Jerry zed,
 " What do thâ thenk that I be like ?"
 An nodded to 'm iz head.

" Which is tha wâ to Glassenberry ?
 " I've hired tha hawly thorn
 " War zet there by zum hawly hons
 " Zoon âter Christ war born ;

* Cossington.

“ An I’ve a mine ta zee it too,

“ An o’ tha blowth ta take.”

“ An how can you, a seely man,

“ Jitch seely journey make ?

“ What ! dwont ye knew that now about

“ It is the midst o’ June ?

“ Tha hawly thorn at Kirsmas blaws—

“ You be zix months too zoon.

“ Goo whim again, yea gâwky ! goo !”

Zaw zed a damsel vair

As dewy mornin late in Mâ ;

An Jerry wide did stare.

“ Lord Miss !” zed he, “ I niver thawt

“ O’ Kirsmas !—while I’ve shoes,

“ To goo back now I be zet out,

“ Is what I sholl not choose.

“ I’ll zee the Torr an hawly thorn,

“ An Glassenberry too ;

“ An, nif you’ll put me in tha wâ,

“ I’ll gee grate thanks ta you.”

“ Goo droothic veel an upthic lane,

“ An take tha lift hon path,

“ Than droo Miss Crossman’s backzid strait,

“ Ool bring ye up ta Wrath.

“ Now mine, whaur you da turn again

“ At varmer Veal’s long yacker, “ Clooäse whaur Jan Lide, tha cobler, lives,

“ Who makes tha best o’ tacker ;

“ You mist turn short behine tha house

“ An goo right droo tha shord,

“ An than you’ll pass a zummer lodge,

“ A builded by tha lord.

“ Tha turnpick than is jist belaw,

“ An Cock-hill strait avaur ye.”

Za Jerry doff’d his hat an bow’d,

An thank’d er vor er storry.

Bit moor o’ this I need not zà,

Vor off went Jerry Nutty ;

In hiz right hon a wâkin stick,

An in hiz qut a tutty.

Bit I vorgot to zâ that Jer
A zatchel wi' en took
To hauld zum bird an cheese ta ate ;—
Iz drink war o' tha brook.

Za when a got upon Cock-hill
Upon a linch a zawt ;
The zun had climmer'd up tha sky ;
A voun it very hot.

An, as iz stomick war za good,
A made a horty meal ;
An werry war wi' wâkin zaw,
A sleepid zoon did veel.

That blessed power o' bâmy sleep,
Which auver ivery sense
Da wi' wild whiverin whings extend
A happy influence ;

Now auver Jerry Nutty drow'd
Er lissom mantle wide ;
An down a drapp'd in zweetest zleep,
Iz zatchel by iz zide.

Not âll tha noisy stouts could wâke
 En vrom iz happy zleep,
 Nor emmets thick, nor vlies that buz,
 An on iz hons da creep.

Naw dreams a had ; or nif a had Mooäst pleasant dreams war thâ :
 O' geese an goose-aggs, ducks an jitch ;
 Or Mally, vur awâ.

Zum gennelmen war dreavin by
 In a gilded cawch za gâ ;
 Thâ zeed en lyin down asleep ;
 Thâ bid tha cawchman stâ.

Thâ bâll'd, thâ hoop'd—a niver wâk'd ;
 Naw houzen there war handy ;
 Zed one o'm, “ Nif you like, my bways,
 “ We'll ha a little randy ! ”

“ Jist put en zâtly in tha cawch
 “ An dreav en ta Bejwâter ;
 “ An as we âll can't g'in wi'n here,
 “ I'll come myzel zoon âter.”

Twar done at once : vor norn o'm car'd
 A strâ vor wine or weather ;
 Than gently rawl'd tha cawch along,
 As zât as any veather.

Bit Jerry snaur'd za loud tha naise
 Tha gennelmen did gally ;
 Thâ'd hâf a mind ta turn en out :
 A war dreamin o' his Mally !

It war the morkit dâ as rawl'd
 Tha cawch athin Bejwâter ;
 Thâ drauv up ta tha Crown-Inn door.
 Ther Mâ-game man com'd âter.

“ Here Maester Wâter ! Lock-y-zee !
 “ A-mâ-be you mid thenk
 “ Thic mon a snaurin in tha cawch
 “ Is auvercome wi' drenk.

“ Bit 'tis not jitchy theng we knew ;
 “ A is a cunjerin mon,
 “ Vor on Cock-hill we vound en ly'd
 “ Iz stick stiff in hiz hon.

“ Iz vace war cover’d thick wi’ vlies
 “ An bloody stouts a plenty ;
 “ Nif he’d a pumble voot bezide,
 “ An a brumstick vor’n to zit ascride,
 “ O’ wizards a mid be thawt tha pride,
 “ Amangst a kit o’ twenty.”

“ Lord zur ! an why d’ye bring en here
 “ Ta gally âll tha people ?
 “ Why zuggers ! nif we frunt en than,
 “ He’ll auver-dro tha steeple.

“ I bag ye, zur, ta take en vooäth ;
 “ There ! how iz teeth da chatter ;
 “ Lord zur ! vor Christ—look there again !
 “ A’ll witchify Bejwâter !”

Tha gennelmen stood by an smiled
 To zee tha bussle risin :
 Vor zoon, droo-out tha morkit, wide
 Tha news war gwon saprisin.

An round about tha cawch thâ dring’d—
 Tha countryman and townsman ;
 An young an awld, an man an maid—
 Wi’ now an tan, an here an there,
 Amang tha crowd to gape an stare,
 A doctor an a gownsman.

Jitch naise an bother wâkid zoon

Poor hormless Jerry Nutty.

A look'd astunn'd ;—a cood'n speak !

An daver'd war iz tutty.

A niver in hiz life avaur

Ad bin athin Bejwâter ;

A thawt, an if a war alive,

That zummet war tha matter.

Tha houzen cling'd together zaw !

Tha gennelmen an ladies !

Tha blacksmith's, brazier's hammers too !

An smauk whauriver trade is.

Bit how a com'd athin a cawch

A war amaz'd at thenkin ;

A thawt, vor sartin, a must be

A auvercome wi' drenkin.

Thâ ax'd en nif a'd please to g'out

An ta tha yalhouse g'in ;

Bit thâ zo clooäse about en dring'd

A cood'n goo athin.

Ta g'under 'em or g'auver 'em
 A try'd booäth grate and smâl' ;
 Bit g'under, g'auver, g'in, or g'out,
 A cood'n than at âll.

“Lord bless ye ! gennel-vawk !” zed he,
 “I’m come to Glassenberry
 “To zee tha Torr an Hawly Thorn ;
 “What makes ye look za merry ?”

“Why mister wizard ! dwont ye knew,
 “Theäse town is câll'd Bejwâter !”
 Cried out a whipper-snapper man :
 Thâ âll bust out in lâughter.

“I be’n’t a wizard, zur !” a zed ;
 “Bit I’m a little titch’d ;*
 “Or, witherwise, you mid well thenk
 “I’m, zure anow, bewitch’d !”

Thaw Jerry war, vor âll tha wordle,
 Like very zel o’ quiet,
 A veel’d iz blood ta bwile athin
 At jitchy zort o’ riot ;

* Touched.

Za out a jump'd amangst 'em âll !
 A made a desperd bussle ;
 Zum hirn'd awâ—zum made a ston ;
 Wi' zum a had a tussle.

Iz stick now sar'd 'em justice good ;
 It war a tough groun ash ;
 Upon ther heads a plâ'd awâ,
 An round about did drash.

Thâ belg'd, thâ raur'd, thâ scamper'd âll,
 A zoon voan rum ta stoory ;
 A thawt a'd be reveng'd at once,
 Athout a judge or jury.

An, thaw a bawk naw-body's bwons,
 A gid zum bloody nawzes ;
 Tha pirty maids war fainty too ;
 Hirn'd vrom ther cheaks tha rawzes.

Thinks he, me gennelmen ! when nex
 I goo to Glassenberry,
 Yea shant ha jitch a rig wi' I,
 Nor at my cost be merry.

Zaw, havin clear'd izzel a wâ,
Right whim went Jerry Nutty ;
A flourished roun iz wâkin stick ;
An vleng'd awâ iz tutty,

THE short and simple annals of the poor.

GRAY.

T E D D Y B A N D.

Miss Hanson to Miss Mortimer.

Ashcot, July 21st.

My Dear Jane;

I returned from the Valley of Rocks a few days since, and would have done myself the pleasure of paying you a visit instead of sending this; but some engagements will prevent me that gratification for ten days, or a fortnight, at least. You will want to know how I have been engaged; it is impossible for me to tell you now. Suffice it to say, that I have been abundantly gratified. I am quite out of conceit with this part of Somersetshire since my return! But begone ye mountains! thou sea! ye cataracts! I am on tip-toe to learn how you are; and, may I venture to say, how Mr. Cloyne is—does he continue his attentions?—I sincerely hope so, and that you, my dear Jane, are where I wish you to be—on the high road to happiness!

As I cannot come myself, and as I have not time to write a long letter, will you do me the favour to amuse yourself and your friends with the inclosed epistle? It is certainly an original—written in the dialect of the County. You will easily understand it, and I do not doubt the “moril” too.

Edward Band, or as he is more commonly called here, Teddy Band, is a poor, but honest and industrious cottager—perhaps one of those flowers which is doomed

“To blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air;”
But I am, nevertheless, sometimes disposed to think that “If ignorance is bliss,

’Tis folly to be wise.”

My dear Jane,

Affectionately yours,

MARIA HANSON.

Teddy Band to Miss Hanson.

Mâm,

I da think you’ll smile at theeäzam here veo lains that I write ta you, bin I be naw scholard: vor vather coud’n avoord ta put I ta school. Bit nif you'll vorgee me vor my bauldniss, a-mâ-be, I mid not be afeard ta zâ zummet ta you that you, mâm, yourzel mid like ta hire. Bit how be I ta knew that? I knew that you be a good horted Lady, an da like ta zee poor vawk well-at-eased an happy. You axt I tother dâ ta zing a zong: now I dwont much like zum o' thâ zongs that I hired thic night at squire Reeves's when we made an end o' Hâ-corrin: vor, zim ta I, there war naw moril to 'em. I like zongs wi' a moril to 'em. Tha nawtes, to be shower, war zât anow, bit, vor âll that, I war lookin vor tha moril, mâm. Zo, when I cum'd whim, I tawld our Pall, that you axt I ta zing; an I war zorry âterward that I did'n, bin you be âlways zo desperd good ta poor vawk. Bit I thawt, a-mâ-be, you mid be angry wi' my country lidden. Why Teddy, zed Pall, dwont ye zend Miss Hanson thic zong which you made yerzel; I thenk ther is a moril in thic. An zo, mâm, nif you please, I a zent tha zong. I haup you'll vorgee me.

Mâm, your humble sarvant,

T E D D Y B A N D

Z O N G.

I HAVE a cot o' Cob-wâll
Roun which tha ivy climbs ;
My Pally at tha night-vâll
Er crappin viér trims.

A comin vrom tha plow-veel
I zee tha blankers rise,
Wi' blue smauk cloudy curlin,
An whivering up tha skies.

When tha winter wines be crousty,
An snaws dreav vast along,
I hurry whim—tha door tine,
An cheer er wi' a zong.

When spreng, adresst in tutties,
Câlls âll tha birds abroad ;
An wrans an robin-riddicks,
Tell âll the cares o' God,

I zit bezides my cot-door
Ater my work is done,
While Pally, bizzy knittin,
Looks at tha zettin zun.

When summertime is passin,
An harras dâs be vine,
I drenk tha sporklin cyder,
An wish naw wither wine.

How zweet tha smill o' clawver,
How zweet tha smill o' hâ;
How zweet is haulsom labour,
Bit zweeter Pall than thâ.

An who dye thenk I envy,
Tha nawbles o' tha land ?
Thâ can't be moor than happy,
An that is Teddy Band.

Mister Ginnins ;

I a red thic ballet o' yourn cålled Fanny Fear, an, zim ta I, there's naw moril to it. Nif zaw be you da thenk zo well o't, I'll gee one.

I dwont want to frunt any ov tha gennelmen o' tha country, bit I âlways a thawt it desperd odd, that dogs should be keept in a kannel, an keept a hungered too, saw that thå mid be moor eager to hunt thic poor little theng cålled a hare. I dwon naw, bit I da thenk, nif I war a gennelman, that I'd vine better spoort than huntin ; bezides, zim ta
I 'tis desperd wicked to hunt animals vor one's spoort. Now, jitch a horrid blanscue as what happened at Shapick, niver could a bin but vor tha hungry houns. I haup that gennelmen ool thenk o't oten ; an when thå da hire tha yell o' tha houns thå'll not vorgit Fanny Fear ; a-må-be thå mid be zummet tha wiser an better vor't ; I'm shower jitch a storry desarves ta be remimbered.
This is the moril.

I am, sur, your sarvant,

TEDDY BAND.

THE CHURCHWARDEN.

THE CHURCHWARDEN.

UPON a time, naw matter whaur,
Jitch plazen there be many a scaur
 In Zummerzet's girt gorden ;
(I've hir'd 'twar handy ta tha zea,
Not vur vrom whaur tha zantots be)
 There liv'd a young churchwarden.

A zim'd delighted when put in,
An zaw a thawt a ood begin
 Ta do hiz office duly ;
Bit zum o'm, girt vawk in ther wâ—
 Tha Parish o'ten câlled,—a girt bell-sheep
Or two that lead tha rest an quiet keep—
Put vooäth ther hons iz coose ta stâ,
 Which made en quite unruly.

A went, of coose, ta Visitâtion
 Ta be sworn in ;—an than 'twar nâtion
 Hord that a man his power should doubt,—
 An moor—ta try ta turn en out !
 “Naw, Naw !” exclaim’d our young church-warden,
 “I dwon’t care vor ye âll a copper varden !”

Tha church war durty.—Wevets here
 Hang’d danglin vrom tha ruf ; an there
 Tha plaisterin shaw’d a crazy wâll ;
 Tha âltar-piece war dim and dowsty too,
 That Peter’s maricle thâ sease cood view.
 Tha Ten Commandments nawbody cood rade ;*
 Tha Lord’s Prayer ad nuthin in’t bit “ Brade ; ”†
 Nor had tha Creed
 A lain or letter parfit, grate or smâll.
 ’Twar time vor zum one ta renew ’em âll.

I’ve tawld o’ wevets—zum o’m odd enow ;
 Thâ look’d tha colour of a dork dun cow,
 An like a skin war stratched across tha corners ;

* Read.

† Bread.

Tha knitters o' tha parish tâk'd o knittin
Stockins wi' 'em !—Bit aw, how unbevittin
All tâk like this !—aw fie, tha wicked scorners !

Ta work went tha Churchwarden ; wevets tummel'd Down by tha bushel, an tha pride o' dowst war hummel'd.

Tha wâlls once moor look'd bright.
Tha Painter, fags, a war a Plummer
An Glazier too,
Put vooäth his powers,
(His workin made naw little scummer !)
In zentences, in flourishes, and flowers.
Tha chancel, church and âll look'd new,
An war well suited to avoord delight.

Tha Ten Commandments glitter'd wi' tha vornish ;
Compleat now, tha Lord's Prayer, what cood tornish.
As vor tha Creed 'twar made bran-new Vrom tap ta bottom ; I tell ye true !
Tha âltar-piece wi' Peter war now naw libel
Upon tha church,

Whichh booäth athin an, tower and âll, athout
 Look'd like a well-dress'd maid in pride about ;
 Tha wâlls rejâic'd wi' texts took vrom tha Bible.

Bit, vor âll that, thâ left en in tha lurch :

I bag your pardon,
 I meän, of âll tha expense thâ ood'n pâ a varden.

Jitch zweepin, birshin, paintin, scrubbin ;
 Tha tuts ad niver jitch a drubbin ;

Jitch white-washin an jitch brought gwâin
 A power of money.—Tha Painter's bill
 Made of itzel a pirty pill,

Ta zwell which âll o'm tried in vain !
 Ther stomicks turn'd, ther drawts war norry ;*
 Jitch gilded pills thâ cood'n corry.

An when our young churchwarden ax'd 'em why,
 Thâ laugh'd at en, an zed, ther drawts war dry.

Tha keeper o' tha church war wrong ;
 (Churchwarden still tha burden o' my zong)

A should at vust
 A câll'd a Vestry : vor 'tis hord ta trust

* Narrow.

To Porish generâsity ; an zaw
A voun it : I dwon' knew
Whaur or who war his advisers.
Zum zed a Lâyer gid en bad advice ;
A-mâ-be zaw ; jitch vawk ben't always nice.
Lâyers o' advice be seltimes misers
Nif there's wherewi' ta pâ ;
Or, witherwise, good-bwyte ta Lâyers an tha Lâ.

A Vestry than at last war cried—
A Vestry's power let noâne deride—
When tha church war auver tha clork bâl'd out,
An eese ! an eese ! an eese !
All wonder'd what cood be about,
An stratch'd ther necks like a vlock o' geese ;
Why—ta make a Rate
Vor tha church's late
Repairâtion.
A grate norâtion,
A nâtion naise tha nawtice made,
About tha cost ta be defray'd
Vor tha church's repairâtion.

Tha Vestry met, âll naise an bother ;

One ood'n wait ta hire tha tuther.

When thâ war tir'd o' jitch a gabble,

Ta bâl na moor not one war yable,

A man, a little zâtenfare,

Got up hiz verdi ta declare.

Now Soee, zed he, why we be gwâin

Ta meet in Vestry here in vâin.

Let's come ta zum determinâtion,

An not tâk âll in jitch a fashion.

Let's zee tha 'counts. A snatch'd tha book

Vrom tha Churchwarden in't ta look.

Tha book war chain'd clooäse to his wrist ;

A gid en sily jitch a twist !

That the young Churchwarden loud raur'd out,

“ You'll break my yarm !—what be about ? ”

Tha man a little zâtenfare,

An âll tha Vestry wide did stare !

Bit Soee, zed he again, I niver zeed

Money brought gwâin zaw bad. What need

War ther tha âltar-piece ta titch ?

What good war paintin, vornishin, an jitch ?

What good war't vor'n ta mend
Tha Ten Commandments?—Why did he Mell o' tha Lord's Prayer? Lockyzee!

Ther war naw need
To mell or make wi' thic awld Creed.
I'm zorry vor'n; eese zorry as a friend;
Bit can't conzent our wherewi' zaw ta spend.

Thâ âll, wi' one accoord,
At tha little zâtenfare's word,
Agreed, that, not one varden,
By Rate,
Should be collected vor tha late
Repairâtion
Of tha church by tha young Churchwarden.

THE FISHERMAN

AND

THE PLAYERS.

Now who is ther that han't a hir'd
O' one young Tom CAME?
A Fisherman of Huntspill,
An a well-known name.

A knew'd much moor o' fishin
Than many vawk bezides ;
An a knew'd much moor than mooäst about
Tha zea and âll tha tides.

A knew'd well how ta make buts,
An hullies too an jitch,
An up an down tha river whaur
Tha best place vor ta pitch.

A know'd all about tha stake-hangs
 Tha zâlmon vor ta catch,—
 Tha pitchin an tha dippin net,— Tha Slime an tha Mud-Batch.*

* Two islands well known in the River Parret, near its mouth.

Several words will be found in this Poem which require explanation; I have not placed them in the Glossary, because they seem too local and technical to deserve a place there: they shall be here explained.

To Pitch. v. n. To fish with a boat and a pitchin-net in a proper position across the current so that the fish may be caught.

Pitchin-net. s. A large triangular net attached to two poles, and used with a boat for the purpose, chiefly, of catching salmon.—The fishing boats in the Parret, it ought, perhaps, to be here remarked, are flat-bottomed, in length about seventeen feet, about four feet and a half wide, and pointed at both ends: they are easily managed by one person, and are rarely, if ever, known to overturn.

Dippin-net. s. A small net somewhat semicircular, and attached to two round sticks for sides, and a long pole for a handle. It is used for the purpose of dipping salmon and some other fish, as the shad, out of the water.

Gad. s. A long pole, having an iron point to it, so that it may be easily thrust into the ground. Two gads are used for each boat. Their uses are to keep the boat steady across the current, in order that the net may be in a proper position.

A handled too iz gads well
 His paddle and iz oor ;*
 A war âlways bawld an fearless—
 A, when upon tha Goor.†

O' heerins, sprats, an porpuses—
 O' âll fish a cood tell ;
 Who bit he amangst tha Fishermen—
 A âlways bear'd tha bell.

Tommy Came ad hired o' Plâyers,
 Bit niver zeed 'em plâ ;
 Thâ war actin at Bejwâter ;
 There a went wi' Sally Dâ.

When tha curtain first drâw'd up, than Sapriz'd war Tommy Came ;
 A'd hâf a mine ta hirn awâ,
 Bit stapp'd vor very shame.

* Oar.

† The Gore, dangerous sands so called, situated at the mouth of the River Parret, in the Bristol Channel.

Tha vust act bein auver
Tha zecond jist begun,
Tommy Came still wonder'd grately,
Ta him it war naw fun.

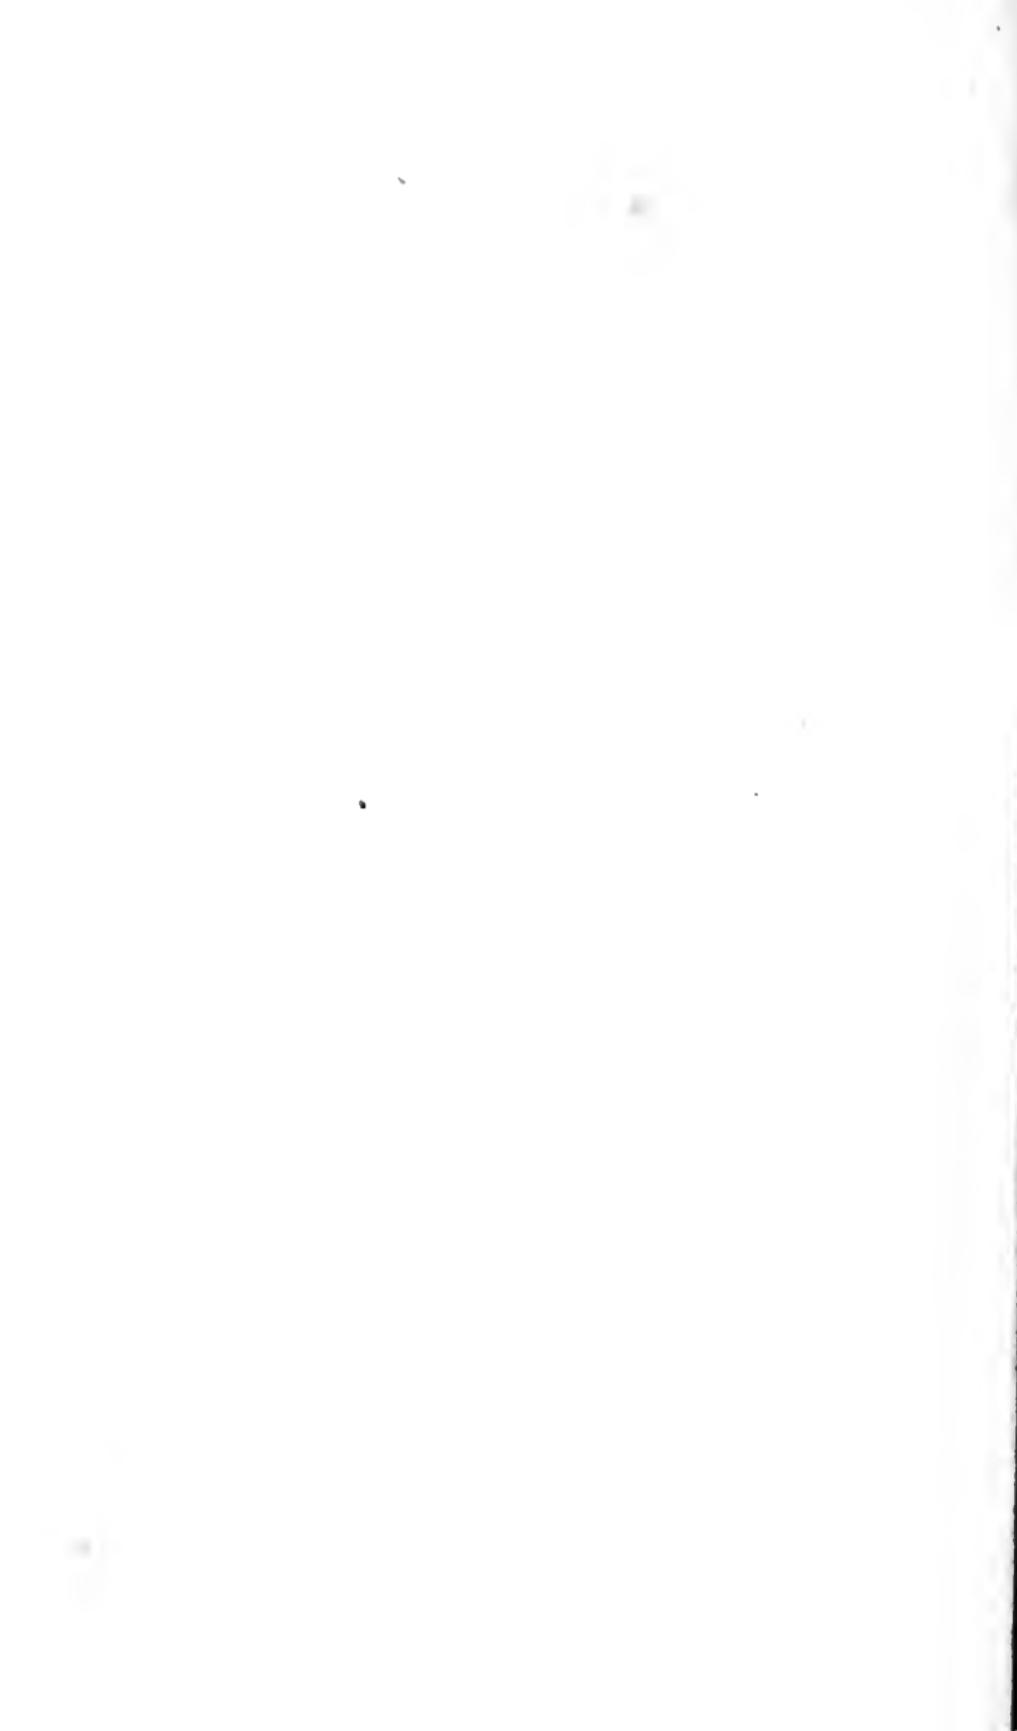

Zaw âter lookin on zumtime,
Ta understand did strive ;
*There now, zed he, I'll gec my woth
That thâ be âll alive !

* Oath.

M R. G U Y.

[THE incident on which this story is founded, occurred in the early part of the last century ; hence the allusion to making a will before making a journey to the metropolis.]

M R. G U Y.

MR. GUY war a gennelman
O' Huntspill, well known
As a grazier, a hirch one,
Wi' lons o' his awn.

A ôten went ta Lunnun
Hiz cattle vor ta zill ;
All tha hosses that a rawd
Niver minded hedge or hill.

A war afeard o' naw one ;
A niver made his will,
Like wither vawk, avaur a went
Hiz cattle vor ta zill.

One time a'd bin ta Lunnun
An zawld iz cattle well ;
A brought awâ a power o' gawld,
As I've a hired tell.

As late at night a rawd along
All droo a unket ood,
A ooman rawze vrom off tha groun
An right avaur en stood :

She look'd za pitis Mr. Guy
At once hiz hoss's pacc
Stapt short, a wonderin how, at night,
She com'd in jitch a place.

A little trunk war in her hon ;
She zim'd vur gwon wi' chile.
She ax'd en nif a'd take er up
An cor er a veo mile.

Mr. Guy, a man o' veelin
Vor a ooman in distress,
Than took er up behind en ;
A cood'n do na less.

A corr'd er trunk avaur en,
An by hiz belt o' leather
A bid er hawld vast ; on thâ rawd,
Athout much tâk, together.

Not vur thâ went avaur she gid
A whissle loud an long ;
Which Mr. Guy thawt very strânge ;
Er voice too zim'd za strong !

She'd lost er dog, she zed ; an than Another whissle blaw'd,
That stortled Mr. Guy ;—a stapt
Hiz hoss upon tha rawd.

Goo on, zed she ; bit Mr. Guy
Zum rig beginn'd ta fear :
Vor voices rawze upon tha wine,
An zim'd a comin near.

Again thâ rawd along ; again
She whissled. Mr. Guy
Whipt out hiz knife an cut tha belt,
Than push'd er off !—Vor why ?

Tha ooman he took up behine,
 Begummers, war a man !
 Tha rubbers saw ad lâd ther plots
 Our grazier to trepan.

I sholl not stap ta tell what zed
 Tha man in ooman's clawze ;
 Bit he, an âll o'm jist behine,
 War what you mid suppawze.

Thâ cust, thâ swaur, thâ dreaten'd too,
 An âter Mr. Guy
 Thâ gallop'd âll ; 'twar niver-tha-near :
 Hiz hoss along did vly.

Auver downs, droo dales, awâ a went,
 'Twar dâ-light now amawst,
 Till at an inn a stapt, at last,
 Ta thenk what he'd a lost.

A lost?—why, nothin—but hiz belt !—
 A zummet moor ad gain'd :
 Thic little trunk a corr'd awâ—
 It gawld g'lore contain'd !

Nif Mr. Guy war hirch avaur,
A now war hircher still :
Tha plunder o' tha highwâmen
Hiz coffers went ta vill.

In sâfety Mr. Guy rawd whim ;
A ôten tawld tha storry.
Ta meet wi' jitch a rig myzel
I shood'n, soce, be zorry.

THE ROOKERY.

THE ROOK, corvus frugilegus, is a bird of considerable intelligence, and is, besides, extremely useful in destroying large quantities of worms and larvæ of destructive insects. It will, it is true, if not watched, pick out, after they are dibbled, both pease and beans from the holes with a precision truly astonishing; a very moderate degree of care is, however, sufficient to prevent this evil, which is greatly overbalanced by the positive good which it effects in the destruction of insects.

It is a remarkable fact, and not, perhaps, generally known, that this bird rarely roosts at the rookery, except for a few months during the period of incubation, and rearing its young. In the winter season it more commonly takes flights of no ordinary length, to roost on the trees of some remote and sequestered wood. The Elm is its favourite, on which it usually builds; but such is its attachment to locality, that since the incident alluded to in the following Poem took place, the Rooks have, many of them, built in fir trees at a little distance from their former habitation. The habits of the Rook are well worthy the attention of all who delight in the study of Natural History.

THE ROOKERY.

My zong is o' tha ROOKERY,
Not jitch as I a zeed
On stunted trees wi' leaves a veo,
A very veo indeed,

In thic girt place thâ Lunnun câll ;—
Tha Tower an tha Pork
Hâ booäth a got a Rookery,
Althaw thâ han't a Lork.

I zeng not o' jitch Rookeries,
• Jitch plazen, pump or banners ;
Bit town-berd Rooks, vor âll that, hâ,
I warnt ye, curious manners.

My zong is o' a Rookery
 My Father's cot bezide,
Avaur, years âter, I war born
 'Twar long tha parish pride.

Tha elms look'd up like giants tall
 Ther branchy yarms aspread ;
An green plumes wavin wi' tha wine,
 Made gâ each lofty head.

Ta drâ tha pectur out—ther war
 At distance, zid between Tha trees, a thatch'd Form-house, an geese
 A cacklin on tha green.

A river, too, clooäse by tha trees,
 Its stickle coose on slid,
Whaur yels an trout an wither fish
 Mid ôtentimes be zid.

Tha rooks voun this a pleasant place—
 A whim ther young ta rear ;
An I a ôten pleas'd a bin
 Ta wâtch 'em droo tha year.

'Tis on tha dâ o' Valentine
 Or there or thereabout,
 Tha rooks da vust begin ta build,
 An cawin, make a rout.

Bit aw ! when May 's a come, ta zee
 Ther young tha gunners shut
 Vor SPOORT, an bin, as zum da zâ, (Naw readship in't I put)

*That nif thâ did'n shut tha rooks
 Thâ 'd zoon desert tha trees !*
 Wise vawk ! Thic reason vor ther SPOORT
 Gee thâ mid nif thâ please !

Still zeng I o' tha Rookery.
 Vor years it war tha pride
 Of âll place, bit 'twar ta I
 A zumthin moor bezide.

I hired tha Rooks avaur I upp'd ;
 I hired 'em droo tha dâ ;
 I hired ther young while gittin flush
 An ginnin jist ta câ.

I hired 'em when my mother gid
 Er lessins kind ta I,
 In jiteh a wâ when I war young,
 That I war fit ta cry.

I hired 'em at thâ cottage door,
 When mornin, in tha spreng,
 Wâk'd vooäth in youth an beauty too,
 An birds beginn'd ta zeng.

I hired 'em in tha winter-time
 When, roustin vur awâ,
 Thâ visited tha Rookery
 A whiverin by dâ.

My childhood, youth, and manood too,
 My Father's cot recall
 Thic Rookery. Bit I mist now
 Tell what it did bevâll.

'Twar Mâ-time—heavy wi' tha nests
 War laden âll tha trees ;
 An to an fraw, wi' creekin loud,
 Thâ sway'd ta iv'ry breeze.

One night tha wine—a thundrin wine,
Jitch as war hired o' niver,
Blaw'd two o' thic girt giant trees
Flat down into tha river.

Nests, aggs, an young uns, âll awâ
War zweept into tha wâter ;
An zaw war spwiled tha Rookery
Vor iver and iver âter.

I visited my Father's cot :
Tha Rooks war âll a gwon ;
Whaur stood tha trees in lofty pride
I zid there norra one.

My Father's cot war desolate ;
An âll look'd wild, vorlorn ;
Tha Ash war stunted that war zet
Tha dâ that I war born.

My Father, Mother, Rooks, âll gwon !
My Charlotte an my Lizzy !—
Tha gorden wi' tha tutties too !—
Jitch thawts why be za bizzy !

Behawld tha wâ o' human thengs !
Rooks, lofty trees, an Friends—
A kill'd, taur up, like leaves drap off'!—
Zaw feaver'd bein ends.

part of a century. She was extremely illiterate, so much so, as not to be able to write, and, I think, could scarcely read. She lived for some years in a house belonging to my father, and while a boy, I was very often her gratuitous amanuensis, in writing letters for her to her children. She possessed, however, considerable shrewdness, energy, and perseverance, and amassed property to the amount of several hundred pounds. She had three husbands ; the name of the first was, I believe, Gool or Gould, a relation of Thomas Gool, the subject of the above Poem ; the name of the second was Martin, of the third Pain ; but as the last lived a short time only after having married her, she always continued to be called Joannah Martin.

Joannah was first brought into public notice by the Rev. Mr. WARNER, in his Walks through the Western Counties, published in 1800, in which work will be found a lively and interesting description of her, and with which I have reason to know that Joannah was not a little pleased ; but she often said that she should wish me to write her life, as I was, of course, more intimately acquainted with it than any casual inquirer could possibly be. An additional notice of Joannah appears in the Monthly Magazine, for Nov. 1816, page 310. This notice was written by myself ; I allude to it in order to observe, that I believe I have somewhere, among my papers, the original song, of which she was the authoress, and which I copied from her dictation many years ago, the only copy, I presume, in existence; I regret that I cannot now lay my hand upon it: it contains, of course, much of the Somersetshire idiom. I have more than once heard her sing this song, which was satirical, and related to the conduct of a female, one of her neighbours, who had, without the least apparent necessity, become a thief.

Such was JOANNAH MARTIN, a woman who, had she been more fortunately and favourably thrown—had she moved in a sphere where her original talents and energies could have been improved by education, her name might have been added to the list of distinguished female worthies of our country.

LADIES ! Time, that fell destroyer,
 Bids me say, at once, farewell—
 Yet, believe me, 'tis most painful—
 More than pen or tongue can tell.

Will you, when I'm gone and distant,
 Think of me who sojourn'd here ?
 Yes—I know you will, ye Fair Ones !
 Nay—I do not ask a tear.

Pleas'd by you to be remember'd ;
 Pleas'd if, when I'm far way,
 You shall smile and think of one who Pass'd here one delightful day.

 Leave a wavy flood of brightness
 On the soul—Adieu ! adieu !

Now Miss Whitin, tha dunces be a gwon, let I hire how pirty you can read.—I âlways zed that Pâson Tuttle's grandâter ood lorn er book well.—

* I'll gee ye zummet. I will give you something or somewhat. There is a strong disposition to omit the pronoun after such words as gee and wi'. Thus, it is very common, indeed, to say I'll goo wi', for I'll go with you : this originates, I apprehend, from the great similarity of the vowel sounds in wi', gee and ye.

Now, Miss, what ha ye a got there?—Valentine an Orson.—A pirty storry, bit I be afeard there's naw moril to it.—What be all tha tutheriny books you a got by yer goodhussey there in tha basket? CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS.

I HAVE alluded, in the Preface, to a late excursion which I made in the West. That excursion has, I am happy to say, contributed not a little to renew and enlarge my acquaintance with some of the dialects of my native county—Somersetshire. It has also procured for me an introduction to Miss HAM, a lady, whose poetical talents are of no mean order. I cannot, perhaps, better close this work, than by presenting to the reader Miss HAM's observations, in a letter to me, on these dialects.

The lines, of which I desired a copy, contain an exemplification of the use of utchy or iche, used contractedly [see UTCHY in the Glossary] by the inhabitants of the South of Somersetshire, one of the strong holds, as I conceive, of the Anglo-Saxon dialect.

In our polished dialect, the lines quoted by Miss HAM, may be thus rendered—

Bread and cheese I have had,
What I had I have eaten,
More I would [have eaten if] I had [had] it.

If the contractions be supplied they will stand thus :—

Bread and cheese ichè have a had
That ichè had ichè have a eat
More ichè would ichè had it.

Clifton, Jan. 30, 1825.

Sir ;

I have certainly great pleasure in complying with your request, although I fear that any communication it is in my power to make, will be of little use to you in your curious work on the West Country dialect. The lines you desire to have are these :

Bread and cheese 'c' have a had,
That 'c' had 'c' have a eat,
More 'ch wou'd 'c' had it.

Sounds which, from association no doubt, carry with them to my ear the idea of great vulgarity :

but which might have a very different effect on that of an unprejudiced hearer, when dignified by an Anglo-Saxon pedigree. The Scotch dialect, now become quite classical with us, might, perhaps, labour under the same disadvantage amongst those who hear it spoken by the vulgar only.

Although I am a native of Somersetshire, I have resided very little in that county since my childhood, and, in my occasional visits since, have had little intercourse with the aborigines. I recollect, however, two or three words, which you might not, perhaps, have met with. One of them of which I have traditional knowledge, being, I believe, now quite obsolete. Pitisanquint was used in reply to an inquiry after the health of a person, and was, I understand, equivalent to pretty well, or so so. The word Lamiger, which signifies an invalid, I have no doubt you have met with. When any one forbodes bad weather, or any disaster, it is very common to say Don't ye housenee. Here you have the verbal termination, which you remarked was so common in the West, and which I cannot help thinking might have been originally used as a sort of diminutive, and that to milkee, signified to milk a little.

As my knowledge of these few words is merely oral, I cannot answer for the orthography ; I have endeavoured to go as near to the sound as possible, and I only wish it were in my power to make some communication more worth your attention. As it is, I have only my best wishes to offer for the success of your truly original work.

I am, Sir, your most obedient,

ELIZABETH HAM.

I have only one or two remarks to add to those of Miss HAM in the preceding letter.

It will be seen, by reference to the exemplifications of the dialect, that occasional pleonasm will be found in it, as well as, very often, extraordinary contraction. I have a done, I have a had, are examples of the first ; and 'tword'n, g'up, g'under, banehond, &c. [see BANEHOND, in the Glossary] are examples of the last. Pitis anquint appears to me to be simply a contracted and corrupted mode of expressing Piteous and quaint. [See PITIS in the Glossary.]

Don't ye housenee is, Do not stay in your houses. But the implied meaning is, be active ; do your best to provide for the bad weather which portends. In Somersetshire, most of the colloquial and idiomatic expressions have more or less relation to agriculture, agricultural occupations, or to the most common concerns of life, hence such expressions have, in process of time, become figurative. Thus, don't ye housenee, would be readily applied to rouse a person to activity, in order that he may prevent or obviate any approaching or portending evil.

I am still of opinion ; indeed I may say, I am quite sure, that the verbal terminations, sewy, knitty, &c. have no relation to diminution in the district East of the Parret.

Upon the whole, it is evident that considerable care and circumspection are necessary in committing to paper the signs of the sounds of a language, of which we have no accredited examples, nor established criterion. In making collections for this work, I have not failed to bear this constantly in mind.

THE END.
